Back to drawing board for Carmel Viejo project

By FRANK GEORGE

AFTER A two and a half-hour public hearing, the Carmel City Council sent Robert Murphy's 20-unit Carmel Viejo apartment and condominium project back to the drawing boards.

The 4-1 Jan. 8 decision sends the issue back to the planning commission, which approved the $3 to $5 million project Nov. 28. The council's hearing was in response to a Carmel Residents Association (CRA) appeal of the commission's approval.

Councilman Bob Fischer dissented in the decision, while Mayor Jean Grace, Councilwoman Barbara Brooks and Councilmen Jim Wright and Ken White voted with the majority.

"It is simply too big and too dense a project for our city," explained David Maradei, who was representing the CRA. Maradei added that the Junipero and Fourth Avenue plan has the highest density rate of any project on the peninsula.

In his motion to grant the appeal, Wright directed Murphy's representatives, architect John Matthams and attorney Jim Heisinger, to make the following changes to the drawings:

- Remove the equivalent of one of the 1,100-square-foot condominiums to provide more open space.

- Leave more room between the buildings, increasing the natural light and a greater view from Vista Lobos parking lot on Torres Street and Third Avenue.

- Increase the distance between the building fronts and Junipero Avenue.

- Make a soil testing to determine the feasibility of a proposed 34-unit underground garage.

In casting his vote, Fischer said he has not liked many similar projects that have appeared before the council, but this was the best he has ever seen.

"I can't see any room for improvement there unless we just plant grass and open up a park," Fischer said.

Although Grace approved the appeal, she pointed out that 700 new affordable houses are needed in California per day, and this was only a 20-unit project that has been in the makings for the past 15 years.

"We need to do our fair share for affordable space," she said, adding that greater site density is needed to leave room for open space.

Saying he is not developer, Murphy noted he and his representatives have been in the planning process since 1984. The Carmel resident said he is very interested in assembling a project that Carmel can be proud of.

Murphy purchased the property in 1984, and an EIR was prepared for the parcel in 1989.

Commissioners Barbara Lysle and Lindsay Hanna were in the minority in the planning commission's 5-2 Nov. 28 approval. The two said a further size reduction was needed for the buildings.

The 20,000-square-foot lot was originally developed in the 1940s as an industrial area by the late J.O. Handley. Most recently, a welding shop has been operating on the site.

Plans for the site included 10 condominiums and 10 rental apartments. The project was provided a 43.6-units-per-acre density bonus, as two of the apartments will be made available to low-income families.

'I can't see any room for improvement there unless we just plant grass and open up a park.'

— Bob Fischer

Additional density was granted to the project for providing extra open space within the building site. Wright said this bonus is self-defeating, because the project provides open space, then takes it away.

Brooks argued many of the trees planted by the builders would actually be located on public land. She pointed out that according to the EIR, an open space requirement cannot be fulfilled on public property.

On the other hand, Heisinger said making more room for open space on the site will create a need to heighten the structures, which would affect the public viewshed. He urged the council not to bring the project back to the planning commission, saying another approval would take six months to obtain, and the result would be a much different project rather than a better one.

Associate planner Brian Roseth said he is not sure when Carmel Viejo will again be placed on the planning commission's agenda.

A STUDY by the city's ad hoc parking committee indicates that a small number of parking spaces is left for visitor parking, after the work force parks its cars.

Report says more parking may be needed to generate ample revenue

By DAVID LELAND

TO BE sure, parking places in downtown Carmel are a scarce commodity. But few would place one of the precious space's value at $306,000 per year.

Yet after employers and their employees take up most of the coveted spots with their cars, the bottom line is that only about 572 spaces remain to generate the approximately $175 million annually taken in by the city's commercial district.

That's the preliminary finding of the city's ad hoc parking committee, according to chairman Alan Williams, who spoke to the Carmel Business Association on traffic solutions last week.

The committee's theory, based on simple mathematics, suggests that $175 million divided by 572 parking spaces equals $306,000 per space per year.

Still in its formative stages, the report, which last year polled merchants and workers on driving habits, will likely come before the Carmel City Council sometime this spring, Williams said.

The ad hoc parking committee is composed of a cross-section of people, including Williams, Yvonne McBride, David Maradei, Stephen Poohar, Bob Rodden, Merv Sutton and Carmel City Councilman Jim Wright.

While the statistics are still being refined, preliminary numbers indicate that Carmel's work force totals 5,600, with about 3,250 workers in town at any one time.

That translates to 82 percent (2,300 cars), parked in Carmel at any one time, according to the survey.

Of those, 500 cars (22 percent), park offstreet in lots or underground garages; 330 (18 percent), in one of Carmel's 900 timed zones; and 1,100 (60 percent), park in neighborhood streets, Williams said.

Those findings echo a recent study on air pollution conducted by Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG), which, in part, recommends that no more than 60 percent of the work force drive alone to work.

Carmel's recent poll showed that more than 80 percent of local workers are solo drivers.

Williams said recommendations are still being readied for the council, but that the committee has recommended that one-hour time zones immediately be increased to two-hour zones.

He added that the parking dilemma has surely marred Carmel's image.

"The outside views us as a regional shopping center without parking," he said. "We have to differentiate ourselves."

The first step to opening up increased parking in the commercial district may be by offering parking permits to workers.

As an example, Williams said parking permits could be sold for a monthly fee, allowing workers to park in portions of the residential district.

Williams said that many small solutions will likely pave the way for increased parking spaces for visitors.

"A massive parking garage is not the solution," he said, referring to plans for a multi-level structure proposed for Sunset Center.

Williams said the committee will recommend that the council circulate the traffic study to the public in the same fashion as other environmental studies.

In other words, there will be a public comment period followed by several public hearings before the council before any final decisions are made.

Point Lobos Ranch owners seeking alternatives to building complex

By DAVID LELAND

LESS THAN one week before filing a county application for the $125 million Point Lobos Ranch, the project's principal players on Wednesday announced they are still seeking an alternative to construction of the 240-room hotel complex.

Plans for Point Lobos Ranch, to be located on the east side of Highway 1 south of Carmel, include a hotel, recreational building and spa, 36-bed hostel, equestrian facilities, employee housing, six units of affordable housing, underground parking, 32 townhomes and housing for a handful of property owners.

"Great interest has been expressed at every level for acquisition of the 1,727-acre ranch by a coalition of public and private charitable non-profit land preservation entities," said project spokesman Ted Richter.

In addition to speaking with neighbors, the property owners have met with representatives of the Big Sur Land Trust, Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District and state Department of Parks and Recreation, Richter said.

Richter said the owners have also met with 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, plus state and federal elected officials.

If a buyer(s) cannot be found for the property, several local politicians have made it abundantly clear that the project faces an uphill battle for approval because of environmental concerns.

With that in mind, even though the application will be filed, ample time will still be available for those in search of funding and support, Richter said.

Project officials are scheduled to file their application with Monterey County at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, according to Denise Medved, media spokeswoman for the project.

The partnership proposing Point Lobos Ranch is composed of Richter; Monterey-based architect Paul Davis; and members of the Riley, Whisler and Hudson families, who inherited the land from A.M. Allan.

"It should be reiterated that both the willingness to sell and the concept employed for valuation of the property would be available only to a group or coalition of groups whose goal and purpose is the conservation, and preservation of the scenic and unique property," Richter said.

The land was assessed by the county for $24 million in 1988.

Richter said the county method of valuation would result in a lower cost than if the traditional fair market value were placed on the land.

Invasion of privacy

Dear Editor:

I find it very laudable that the city is concerned enough about the business community to print up and send out a questionnaire, but unfortunately this questionnaire clearly asks more questions than the government has a right or need to know. It is frankly an invasion of privacy.

The city already knows that the zoning system limiting the types and locations of shops does not work to the benefit of the city or its people, yet it is loath to revert to the system that historically worked so well for the city pro Schmitz/White...and the reason is control.

Even though the system doesn't work, the city can exercise the control over the businesses through the zoning. Remember that this is the city that takes in over $400,000 in parking ticket revenue and refuses to provide adequate parking for its citizens and visitors.

I truly believe that the people who are controlling the city's actions are resentful of the success of our merchant community, where it is successful and will stop at nothing in an attempt to control it. Remember the city has spent over $100,000 prosecuting me for "zoning" violations for the system they know doesn't work, and they are still spending tens of thousands of dollars in this endeavor. These people are jealous and resentful.

Read the questionnaire. ONLY question 15 applies to us and should be answered. The city is not the friend of the business community. Its actions have proved it time and time again. Do not be fooled. Just answer question 15 and see how the city rushes out to help our business community.

The pen is mightier...

Dear Editor:

According to local activist and teacher Rod Holmgren, the research and writing of Professor Ben Bagdikian has been done to uncover what has been occurring for almost 50 years, the gradual elimination of competition.

As we exchanged ideas on our way back to Carmel from the Nevada Test Site Ban, I came to realize that my camera is not a tool but a dangerous weapon that fights to keep this competition alive. It is a device that threatens those who see this elimination as a natural process.

I have been cited twice in the last two weeks for documentation of events that have been simple acts of historical evidence. I have been noticed because of my weapon and I am learning from these mistakes. There is a fine line that one crosses over to cover the events that move the world. These events can hopefully change the well-being of our own lives that we instinctively seek to preserve. It is the loss of these values that made me feel temporarily defeated.

Our carpool of activists passed the Nevada Test Site as we returned from "JAIL." The group gave me hope for one generation's ability to teach the youth in our community what our priorities must be as we dive into the 21st century. It dawned on me that it was no coincidence four people in the car were over 65 and three were students under 25. Five of these individuals decided to cross a line for their beliefs. As I sat cuffed by local authorities, upset by the temporary disappearance of my camera, I realized that another tool went unnoticed inside my pocket. It was my pen.

For the record

Dear Editor:

As a local history writer, I've been enjoying the ongoing attention and free coverage provided by James Craig in the Pine Cone's editorial page. I do wonder, though, if your reading public has any idea what his rantings are about?

My Yesteryears column on the first Carmel Valley Post Office appeared in the Oct. 25 Sun. I wrote the column at the specific request of three local historians who wanted to clear up some embarrassing errors Craig made on the subject in a 1989 series in that publication.

For the record, the Carmel Valley History Society has found no listing in the U.S. Postal archives of a postal location called "White Oak." The names "Carmel," (1889-1893), and "Tularcito" (1903), are the only ones listed for those dates in official records, copies of which are available for public inspection at the history society.

If Craig has official, factual postal records disputing the above, he's never come forward with them. While he continues the polemics, we still wait for his "proof."

As for myself, I'm still trying to figure out why he's writing to the Pine Cone, when my column appeared in the Sun. And, as long as he's at it, I wish he'd learn to spell my name right, too.

The Magical Years

Dear Editor:

Unforgettable

Were those years

Between

1940 and 1942

Those short, short years

Before the war came to us

Exciting to move to Carmel-by-the-Sea

Actually living there

Knowing

Here's where Robinson Jeffers

Don Blanding

Lincoln Steffens

And others live

Or at least slept here

These were the years of

First-born babies

Faculty parties without wine

Long walks on the beach with

My dog Brownie

Playing softball in the Abalone League

On Sunday afternoons

Richard Boone (Have Gun Will Travel)

Playing third base

A tall, lanky, quiet young man

Then the Black out laws

No driving at night

Black curtains at our windows

Block Warden's with our

Flashlights pointed downwards

Waiting Waiting

For the war to end and

The returning

The fearful

Reuniting of loved ones

It's incomprehensible

To have it start
All over again.

Let the music play

Dear Editor:

There's no doubt that "The Village," is a wonderful place to live. To visitors, it seems like everyone who lives there is on a perpetual vacation. There's just one thing missing — live music.

For some strange reason, there is a fear passed on from one gang to the next of civic "shot-callers" that live music will be a booger-ugly nightmare to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

I'll bet there are live music-hating big shot "Carmel Insiders" who elbow each other in the ribs, and guffaw while boasting on how they keep out the "bad element," by squashing plans for cheap live music, that will turn Ocean Avenue into "Honky Tonk Alley."

This traditional thumbs-down on live music is a bad attitude, and a worse law. Even though the city government is only there to help, it's better to let the music play, and let business people do without the extra help.

As one who comes from a long line of music lovers, I protest this revolting situation. Why doesn't somebody do something about this snobbish behavior?

Carmel would be a more cultured environment if one could hear real live music with one's evening toddy. Why aren't there more people in town who'll express their feelings on this matter?

Yours for homemade music

Lawsuit filed over Hatton Canyon Freeway EIR

By DAVID LELAND

A LAWSUIT has been filed in San Jose federal court by Carmel activist Noel Mapstead that seeks to bar the release of the long-awaited final environmental impact statement for the proposed $34 million Hatton Canyon Freeway project.

'It's not unusual for there to be new information in the final (EIS) because they (officials) are responding to comments. But is it significant?'

— David Larkin

In the complaint, Mapstead claims that the final EIS, which could be released as soon as February, contains "significant" new information. The draft EIS was circulated to the public about four years ago.

Mapstead contends that the public has been denied the opportunity to respond to portions of the final EIS and that a supplemental document should be prepared.

"It's not unusual for there to be new information in the final (EIS) because they (officials) are responding to comments," said David Larkin, Phoenix-based attorney for Mapstead. "But is it significant?"

Larkin added that a lawsuit filed about two years ago against the state Coastal Commission in Monterey County Superior Court is currently "on hold."

The lawsuit alleges that the four-laning of Highway 1 alternative in the final EIS was "modified by considering an under or overpass at Carmel Valley Road."

The lawsuit further alleges that the public has been barred from commenting on where water will be found to replace a fresh water marsh in the lower portion of Hatton Canyon and the existing stream.

Moreover, Mapstead alleges that growth impacts from the freeway construction have been downplayed by state officials.

Caltrans officials, however, contend that the final EIS is in order.

"Any changes that have occurred have lessened the impacts so we don't see the need for a supplemental (EIS)," said Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director, who had not yet received the lawsuit when interviewed Jan. 4.

Prior to the filing, Mapstead formed Save Hatton Canyon, a non-profit organization, which is listed as the plaintiff in the action.

Save Hatton Canyon's board of directors is composed of Mapstead, Cole Weston, Michael Kelly, Neil Agron, Paola Berthoin and Todd Acheson.

NAMED AS defendants in the 26-page complaint are Samuel Skinner, U.S. secretary of transportation; Thomas Larsen, administrator of the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA); Edwin Wood, FHWA regional administrator; Lyle Renz, also of FHWA; Carl Covitz, director of state transportation; Robert Best, Caltrans director; Pollock; Pacific Grove City Councilman Robert "Bud" Nunn, president of Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG); and 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck, chairperson of the Monterey County Transportation Commission.

In addition to court costs and attorney's fees, the lawsuit asks for a declaration from the court that a freeway through Hatton Canyon is not the only "practicable alternative."

Plus, the lawsuit asks that the court bar the defendants from constructing the preferred alternative.

Caltrans officials steadfastly contend that a portion of the proposed 2.5-mile freeway must move through the canyon to ensure that traffic congestion is alleviated on Highway 1 between Carpenter Street and the Carmel River.

'Any changes that have occurred have lessened the impacts so we don't see the need for a supplemental (EIS).'

— Tom Pollock

— Caltrans

However, such a freeway would cause pollution of air and water; loss of enjoyment of the visual aesthetic beauty and recreational use of Hatton Canyon; degradation of the local environment; and increased risk to health and safety, according to the lawsuit.

Council OK's remodeling plans for First Murphy house

By FRANK GEORGE

IN A move that inspired much of the audience at Carmel's City Council Chambers to stand up and applaud, the city council unanimously approved remodeling plans for the relocated First Murphy house.

Also at the Jan. 8 meeting, the council OK'd drawings for a park that will be located at the house's Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue site.

Enid Sales of the First Murphy Group, announced that her committee received an anonymous $19,000 donation for the project, giving them $25,000 to start with.

Brian Congleton, who also sits on the Carmel Planning Commission, represented the First Murphy Group at the hearing along with Sales. Congleton donated his architectural skills to the project and presented the remodeling plans to the council.

Jim Gregg of the Carmel Heritage Foundation also spoke for the plans.

Greg D'Ambrosio, assistant city administrator, showed plans for the park, which includes the planting of over 40 upper-canopy trees. It will stretch from the Harrison Memorial Library parking lot on the corner of Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street to the Christian Science church lot further up the street.

The park will feature a smaller Devendorf Park-style restroom facility and patios, which will be placed behind the 89-year-old house. Rocks, shrubs, boulders and pathways will illustrate the landscaping, in an attempt to recapture the original character of the Murphy lot.

The 820-square-foot house was the first constructed by M.J. Murphy, beginning the builder's long career that was to greatly influence the architectural look of Carmel. Murphy built the house for his mother and sisters in 1902 when he was 17 years old. Over the next 40 years, he was Carmel's primary builder — once responsible for the construction of 70 percent of the city's homes.

With the city council's approval, the house was moved from its original location on Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues last June. The move was received with much fanfare, and the house had to be craned up into the air at one point.

The property had been purchased by Stella and Joseph Bason earlier in the year, and they had planned to remove or demolish the home to build a new retail space.

A MODEL of the proposed plans for the First Murphy home was shown to the Carmel City Council at its Jan. 8 meeting. The model has the original hipped roof, which will be a feature of the historical home's renovation. The council approved remodeling plans for the house.

Supes delay decision on ban on new well drilling

By DAVID LELAND

UNDER A dark cloud of threatened lawsuits and semantic differences, Monterey County supervisors this week delayed a decision prohibiting drilling new wells within the county water resource system.

The proposed urgency ordinance would work in concert with a Monterey Peninsula Water Management District measure banning new water connections during current drought conditions.

'The overall usage of water by well owners is down, but the fact remains that we are in the fifth year of a drought. You can't keep putting more straws into the system.'

— Karin Strasser Kauffman

A continued hearing on the drilling issue is scheduled for 5 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, in the supervisors chambers in Salinas.

"Unless we prevent new wells (from) being drilled, there will be a serious public health hazard," said Walter Wong, director of environmental health.

The areas that would be affected by the urgency ordinance are properties along the Carmel River, Seaside and, possibly, portions of Fort Ord.

While the alleged public hazard cited by Wong allows supervisors to invoke police powers, opponents of the measure said the ordinance impinges on private property rights.

"You are not on the cutting edge, you have overstepped the cutting edge with this ordinance," said Lloyd Lowery, attorney for Marina's water district.

As written, Lowery said the proposed ordinance raises issues with water rights, constitutionality, inverse condemnation and the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

Joining in opposition was attorney Tony Lombardo, who said he represented 12 clients in the affected area.

The ordinance "would create further problems," Lombardo said, adding that supervisors should merely ask current well operators to cut back on water use.

Lombardo testified that there are between 100 and 200 wells currently registered with the water district.

Alan Williams, who represented Mission Ranch owner Clint Eastwood, agreed that a little conservation would go a long way.

Williams added that his family has conserved by shutting down a portion of their agricultural land in the valley.

"It's easy to fly over Carmel Valley in an airplane and see who is abusing them (wells)," said Williams, referring to parcels that may be unusually lush in this fifth critically dry year.

Williams also asked supervisors to exempt Mission Ranch from the ordinance.

A well being proposed for Mission Ranch would be used, in part, to irrigate plants along the Carmel River, which are currently being watered by resources of the California-American Water Co., Williams said.

That, Williams said, would free up additional Cal-Am water to be used for residential and business customers.

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman agreed that the ordinance may need reworking, but still insisted that it is necessary.

"The overall usage of water by well owners is down, but the fact remains that we are in the fifth year of a drought," she said. "You can't keep putting more straws into the system."

When the ordinance is brought back before supervisors, Strasser Kauffman requested that staff provide accurate maps on affected areas, offer variance procedures and come up with a time limit for the law.

The supervisor added that a 150-day time limit would coincide with the peninsula's "water year" which ends in early summer.

Grand Jury report blasts supes for lack of leadership

A GRAND Jury report released this week lambasts the Monterey County Board of Supervisors for its ineffective leadership in the county's water crisis.

In refusing to confront water issues supervisors have dragged their feet, while the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District has taken great strides, the report said.

Supervisors "labor under a lack of enthusiastic leadership and direction," according to the report.

ding to the report.

"Monterey County has failed to and continues to delay the formulation, funding and communication of potentially politically unpopular and confrontational issues and recommendations," the report said. "The Grand Jury finds (supervisors) to be hesitant and ineffective in the present circumstances."

While the Grand Jury acknowledged that diverse geography and water needs of the county make supervisors' work more difficult than the peninsula's, that is no excuse.

The Grand Jury recommends that the county's water resources be placed under control of a board independent of supervisors.

Parking permit law may pave way for more ordinances

By FRANK GEORGE

AN ORDINANCE that allows only vehicles with residential parking permits to park along Torres Street in the area of Eighth Avenue paves the way for other neighborhoods to apply for their own ordinances, according to Councilwoman Barbara Brooks.

The ordinance was approved at the Jan. 8 Carmel City Council meeting, and it states it is unlawful for anyone to stop, stand or park their car in the area without a permit.

Speaking as a resident of Carmel, Carla Ramsey, chairwoman of the Carmel Planning Commission, objected to the ordinance, saying it offers preferential treatment to a few residents. "If it's right for one, it's right for all," Ramsey told councilmembers.

Last June 7, the council adopted the resolution that established a three-month trial parking permit period for the Torres Street section. The trial period began in August, and Carmel Police Chief Jack McGilvray said it appears to have stopped vehicle encroachment from the business district into the area.

The ordinance amends the Municipal Code and adds a section that makes it unlawful to park in designated areas without a permit. The ordinance was a response to complaints by residents from the Torres Street area, who said cars from the business district were blocking their parking spaces.

Cocogelato owner can't seem to get city's approval

By FRANK GEORGE

COCOGELATO OWNER Jay Wiener just can't win one with Carmel's governing bodies.

Wiener's fourth attempt at obtaining a permit to sell soups, sandwiches and salads at his Ocean Avenue ice cream shop was unanimously denied by the city council at its Jan. 8 meeting. This time, the council said they feared another business would go into the space in the future and enjoy the additional uses allowed by a new permit without charging Wiener's cut-rate prices.

Despite the fact that he voted for the denial, Councilman Bob Fischer said he didn't see anything wrong with having an additional restaurant on Ocean Avenue.

"There is a gross inequity with this," Fischer said. "We have to look at the needs of not only the community, but the needs of our businesses too. We need to look at low-income people as well."

Others agreed with Fischer.

"I would very much like to see a place where I can go into town and get a sandwich for under $10," said Carmel housewife Diane Kremer. John Plastini of the newly-formed Tenant-Landlord Committee said he's concerned that there are too many chain stores on Ocean Avenue, and if Cocogelato folds, another national name might take its place.

Grace considered suggesting Wiener apply for a full-service restaurant permit with non-disposable dishes and dishwashers, but City Atty. Don Freeman advised against this. He said Cocogelato could only be either a full-service restaurant or an ice cream and confections store, not both.

Wiener's troubles began last Aug. 8, when the planning commission denied Wiener's request for an expansion of his use permit, saying city code prohibits the sale of other food products in establishments specializing in frozen desserts.

Then, at a Sept. 15 appeal to the city council, Wiener was again denied and directed to apply for a full-service restaurant permit. This would allow the sale of hot foods as well as ice cream and candies at Wiener's shop.

The San Jose resident submitted an application for a full-service permit on Nov. 28, but the commissioners again denied his request. This time they said they would approve only a sit-down-type restaurant, "with table service and dishes to wash," rather than a takeout food store.

He then appealed that denial, only to get shot down again by the council Jan. 8.

City takes on Census Bureau over inaccuracies

By FRANK GEORGE

THE CITY of Carmel is taking on the Census Bureau over what it claims are numerous discrepancies in the federal agency's population and dwelling counts. The city could lose $53,000 in state funds due to the miscounts, according to a planning department report.

"Beyond conducting its own survey, the city is left with no alternative other than to file suit against the Census Bureau, seeking a court-ordered adjustment of the figures," the report concluded.

But the report, dated Jan. 4, left it unclear whether the city of Carmel intends to exercise that option.

Meanwhile, in a Sept. 12 letter to census officials, Mayor Jean Grace noted some discrepancies.

For example, while the Harrison Memorial Library listed 4,175 Carmel resident cardholders, the preliminary census count put the village's population at 3,775.

"Comparing this (3,775) figure to the 1980/census, the city has lost 932 people over the past 10 years," the letter said.

Since Carmel is a small community with a small population, the letter explained, the apparent undercount — about 20 percent of the population — could reduce the city's state funding.

The letter also pointed out that as of May 1990, Carmel had 3,803 registered voters, again

— Planning Dept. report

exceeding the bureau's population figures. In addition, the numbers do not include citizens under 18 who cannot vote, or those not registered to vote.

Also in the letter, Grace mentioned vacant-house figures, which include second homes, transient rentals and other vacant units. The Census Bureau said since 1980, the number has gone from 437 to 933.

"This represents a dramatic (and we believe, erroneous), increase in the city's vacancy rate from 4.1 percent to 31.1 percent," the letter argued.

Grace backed up her assertion with Department of Finance records, which indicate the vacancy rate has leveled off at about 18 percent.

Also, in estimates prepared by Rick Tooker, city assistant planner, 202 new houses were built in Carmel since 1980, bringing the 1990 total to at least 3,320 homes in Carmel. According to a Census Bureau recount however, only 3,118 houses exist in the village.

Nevertheless, planning department officials personally recounted every home in Carmel, arriving at a total of 3,151. The count included all secondary units, except those they could not locate. Tooker said this indicates a discrepancy in numbers ranging from 33 to 202 units.

THE POPULATION miscounts may have resulted from the lack of a direct mailing system in Carmel, Tooker said. Some non-residents also have post office boxes in the city, which complicates the counting system.

Some Carmelites received two surveys, while others received none at all, he added.

Be that as it may, Tooker explained while the city can contest house miscounts, it cannot question the bureau's population numbers.

Both he and Grace voiced frustration at the fact that the bureau counted people (nuns, priests and a housekeeper), living in Carmel Mission Basilica in 1980, but they overlooked them last year. This was "a contradiction in their methodology," Tooker said.

On the other hand, Tooker said at the end of the month, the bureau will submit to the city an updated population count including housing unit, population and vacancy numbers. He said the count will continue to rise until it is finalized and sent to President Bush in April.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

Drivers and other volunteers are needed to deliver 280 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 280 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 25 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 25 routes, four of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals On Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up short-handed. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

It keeps more than memories alive.

Recent freeze has Carmel Valley residents in a bind

By SUSAN BECK

CARMEL VALLEY locals agreed that they couldn't remember when it had been so cold.

Sitting at the bar of Princes Camp's office and tavern, having an early beer or a late cup of morning coffee, residents of the camp talked about the recent freeze that hit the Monterey Peninsula on Dec. 21, the shortest day of the year.

Princes Camp is a mobile home park located east of Carmel Valley just before Jamesburg owned by Rex White, who started managing the camp back in 1952 and bought it 20 years later. White said it has snowed four times right in the heart of the park. A few days before this Christmas, it snowed again, but never could White remember temperatures being 24 degrees below freezing.

The sub-freezing temperatures froze and shattered almost every pipe and pump in the camp, as well as a 1,000-gallon pressure tank for two 15,000-gallon water tanks. The tanks provide service to the 50 available mobile home sites, 24 of them occupied by permanent residents.

"We were fortunate to have water in the bar going all the time," said White. "The Cachagua Fire Department used water from Cal-Am, and allocated it to everyone. Water was hard to come by, and everyone was very helpful. It was rough. Those who had water, shared."

White said that he doubted if any significant amount of water was lost because all the main lines to the tanks were shut off after the pipes froze. He said that everyone is aware of the drought and limited supply of water already, so they are being very careful. "It doesn't hurt to be careful. That's the main reason we still have it," he said.

The freeze damage at Princes Camp has cost White $4,380, but he added, "I'm not done yet."

Victor Farr, 87, with 75 years experience as a trail horserider, has lived at Princes Camp just over a decade. He'd been without water until Jan. 5.

He's had to endure two weeks of hauling gallon jugs and buckets several times a day from a generous neighbor's home, two weeks of dirty dishes, and fewer showers. "I think the only thing worse would be if the electricity was out," said Farr.

Frozen underground pipes caused Farr's water problems, and during that time he realized how much he relied on water even though he says does not waste or use water excessively.

The long-time resident of Princes Camp is grateful to have running water, and as for another freeze, Farr said, "I hope spring comes early."

JUST DOWN the road from Princes Camp is the Joulilian Vineyard. The winery had its share of winter freeze damage when the automated fire system's sprinklers broke.

Carpet, paint, and sheetrock will have to be replaced, said Robert Levy, the vineyard's manager. Also, the sprinkler system will be changed to a dry system using compressed air (inert gas), he said.

Levy said the owner, Edward Joulilian III, made a special trip from his home in Oklahoma to assess the winery's damage and the 41 acres of sauvignon blanc, chardonnay, and cabernet sauvignon grapevines.

Levy said that it may not be until the beginning of February before he can determine the vineyard's loss. The trunks on the vines may be frozen, and anything above will die. Despite new shoots, which can be trained to grow up the stake, losing a substantial amount of grapevines could mean two or three years of production at $60 to $80 a year of fruit loss per vine, said Levy.

The Joulilian Vineyard is well insulated against normal winter temperatures, but Levy, who has worked at the winery for six years, said it has never been this cold, so it may be until spring before he can tell for sure just how much damage this year's winter has caused.

VICTOR FARR (right), a longtime resident of Princes Camp, and Rex White, owner of the mobile home park, check out the pipes to Farr's home that were damaged by the recent freeze and will have to be replaced soon. Farr had no water at all for two weeks. (Susan Beck photo.)

AT THE other end of Carmel Valley, Todd Pascal, co-owner of the Begonia Garden Nursery with Mark Eaton and Jim Flagg, said that the freeze cost him a retail value of about $5,000. He said that the average family probably lost about $200 in plants.

Pascal said that most plants can sustain some frost, but the recent cold spell was "asking too much." There will be delays from the wholesalers because they were the hardest hit, and he advises waiting before considering replanting.

"Don't prune until mid-February, and wait until spring to see what plants survive. Well-established plants will return," he said.

In the village, the damage was tremendous. Carmel Valley residents are paying anywhere

Freeze has valley in a bind

from $50 to $2,200 for repairs to pipes, insulation, and fittings, said Stewart Clough, owner of Stew's Plumbing at Rosie's Cracker Barrel.

It all started the morning of Dec. 22 after people woke up to find their pipes frozen. "We had so many calls that we had to refuse work for people we didn't know. I worked about 10 hours a day on an average of five homes, and we are still backed up for repairs," said Clough.

By Christmas day, Clough was out of plumbing supplies. He went to Watsonville because most of the local wholesalers were either closed or out of parts themselves. Some of his stock was loaned to other plumbers or homeowners trying to do their own work, but he said he has enough to work with.

'We are saving water because we know we have a problem, not because water management dictates reduction in water usage. It would be a lot better if everyone were forgiven.'

— Stew Clough

So many households in the valley were damaged by the low temperatures that Clough decided to work first with the elderly who are ill, then younger families with elderly family members living with them.

A lot of furnaces were shut off, so those older people with no heat got their pilot lights turned on if the Carmel Valley Fire District couldn't get to them. Next in line were families with children.

The valley fire department shut off the water to any home where the family was away during the holidays, said Clough. He said that his crew valved and capped all sprinkler systems that had burst. The systems aren't used now because of water rationing so they will be repaired later, he said. Also, all damaged solar panels were shut off because there is just not enough time to try and fix them, said Clough.

He said he has little advice to offer in this type of situation. "It's the same as an earthquake.

It's hard to know how much to prepare for something that may or may not happen again."

Carmel Valley has seen relatively steady growth in home construction in the last 10 years, but many of the houses were not built for extremely cold temperatures. They are, however, now being brought up to the requirements, said Clough.

There is no doubt that a lot of water was lost before most of the pipelines could be repaired, causing even more strain on the already depleted water supply, said Clough. He added, however, that "it is a natural catastrophe, and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) is not taking that into consideration."

What troubles Clough most during this time of hardship on everyone is the water district's requirement for a contractor's variance for water usage above each resident's water allotment. Once approved, the variance relinquishes responsibility of payment for using more water than was allotted.

For approval the variance requires minimum conservation standards to be met, including the installation of toilet dams, two and a half gallon or less flush toilets, 2.5-gallon-per-minute showerheads, 2.5-inch aerators, and mulch in garden areas, said Clough.

There are many families who stay within their allotment even without minimum conservation standards, Clough said, but now, because of burst pipes and loss of water, these families will have to install the new parts, said Clough.

At current plumbing rates families could be charged at least $100 to install the required parts. That's in addition to the cost of processing a variance from the water district. Clough feels that's reason enough to ask the district to save everyone thousands of dollars by exempting the variance for households and businesses from Dec. 22 to Jan. 8.

"One thing that makes me even madder is the reasoning that some people used extra water, but didn't have broken pipes. They (the water district) are talking down to us and treating us like kids.

"We are saving water because we know we have a problem, not because water management dictates reduction in water usage," said Clough.

"It would be a lot better if everyone were forgiven."

Correction

IN THE Dec. 18, 1990 issue of the Carmel Pine Cone, it was erroneously stated that developer Chris Tescher said local realtors and developers will put their own floor area ration (FAR) initiative before the public if the 40 percent FAR ballot is approved by voters in the March election.

In reality, Tescher had actually said he would do so only if the council did not put the issue on the ballot. Tescher actually made the remark at a city council meeting last summer.

High Meadow condo project still mired in controversy

By DAVID LELAND

A DECADE after filing their application for 36 condominiums in the High Meadow area, the Mahrooms are still at loggerheads with the county.

The current spat involves the county's intent to flag and stake the Mahroom property to forecast the project's visual impacts in an upcoming revised environmental impact report.

"After very serious consideration, Mr. and Mrs. Mahroom have concluded that having their project flagged and staked at this time is inappropriate," said the couple's Salinas-based attorney, Brian Finegan. "They hereby withdraw their permission for the county or its contractor to go on their property."

Ann Towner, a county senior planner, however, believes the work is necessary.

"It is absolutely essential that the proposed development is flagged and staked in accordance with the county's criteria," she said in a letter responding to Finegan's. "If the site is not flagged and staked, the EIR may not be adequate."

The county is currently negotiating with Monterey-based Denise Duffy & Associates to prepare the $8,000, county-funded study.

"It's not a full-blown EIR," Towner said.

"There are just certain areas we (county) have to focus on."

Towner said the revised EIR will examine cumulative impacts, fire safety, water use and regional and traffic impacts.

The project has a stormy history, originating in 1981, when the Mahrooms filed an application for 36 units in seven buildings.

There was also a discrepancy on the amount of affordable housing that should take place with the project.

"I can't think of any reason that they wouldn't stake, unless staking would be very damaging to their case."

— Karin Strasser Kauffman

FINEGAN ALSO contends that the original scope of work for the revised EIR did not contain flagging or staking.

But 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said that staking is imperative for the county to make an accurate decision on visual impacts.

"It will be very difficult to make a judgment on the property (without staking)," said Strasser Kauffman, adding that the Mahroom's action could be construed as damning. "I can't think of any reason that they wouldn't stake, unless staking would be very damaging to their case."

And while Finegan charged that the nearby High Meadows II project has continued to develop without extensive environmental study, Strasser Kauffman refused to take the blame for the delay.

"I certainly don't want to see the county faulted for this," she said, adding that she knows of no other applicant who has refused staking.

Finegan charged that the Mahrooms have fought an uphill battle since filing their application in 1981.

"Once again, it appears that the Mahrooms are being singled out for special treatment," he wrote.

But Ramos called the staking and flagging a simple "procedural" measure.

"(It) is not an application of different standards," he said. "It is the employment of a technique to find out information."

Ramos said that he may turn to the courts for a remedy, which could result in a dismissal of the Mahroom's lawsuit.

The deputy county counsel added that he will give the Mahrooms until the end of January to allow the county on their property.

City council rejects appeal in case of Comstock lot division

By FRANK GEORGE

SAYING THEY are "not so sure that house is in danger of immediate demolition," the Carmel City Council denied Comstock cottage owner Jon Hagstrom's appeal for a lot division at its Jan. 8 meeting.

The unanimous upholding of a Dec. 12 planning commission denial means Hagstrom cannot split his lot and sell a second home on the Casanova and Palou Street parcel. The council contended the division would put the Comstock home on a lot smaller than 4,000 square feet, which would violate city ordinances.

However, Mayor Jean Grace said the city needs to develop a preservation incentive program for residents who own homes with historical or architectural value. The program would encourage owners to put the Village Preservation overlay on dwellings by providing tax breaks.

Representing Hagstrom, attorney Myron Etienne said the application has just as much importance to the city of Carmel as it does to his client. He pointed out that Hagstrom would have to sell both houses if he had to move, making the 6,000-square-foot lot a tempting offer to developers who might demolish the storybook home to make room for a larger one.

Planning Commissioner Lindsay Hanna, who had cast the only dissenting vote in the commission's denial, drew applause from the audience when he addressed the council on the issue.

"The question is, do you want to protect the house? Yes or no?" Hanna said. "I can give you the names of three developers who would like to buy it and tear it down."

Hagstrom said he applied for the lot split because his employer, U.S. Air, might transfer him out of the area. The airline captain says he wants to keep and preserve the Comstock if he has to relocate, but he could not afford to do so without selling the other cottage.

Nevertheless, Grace said the city might be flooded with non-conforming parcel division requests if they granted him a variance. She said there are hundreds of lots the size of Hagstrom's in Carmel with two houses on them.

"I could come in and ask for the same variance myself," Grace said.

Hagstrom's 749-square-foot house was named The Sunwise Turn Cottage when Hugh M. Comstock built it in 1929. It is the only Comstock cottage with a duplicate in the city.

JON HAGSTROM'S Casanova and Palou streets Comstock cottage should be preserved, but the Carmel City Council said Jan. 8 he can't do it by splitting his lot and selling a second home on the parcel. The council denied his appeal of a planning commission denial.

Hagstrom bought his houses three and a half years ago, and besides numerous interior improvements, he painted them and installed drip irrigation in the drought-tolerant garden he planted.

Hagstrom said one small Comstock house was valued at $300,000 three years ago, and John Warren of Ocean Avenue Realty said a remodeled 1,600-square-foot Comstock is now on the market for $699,000.

In 1924, Comstock built his first trademark cottage for his wife, Mayotta. The quaint cottages went on to become Carmel icons, and 19 of them still stand within Carmel's city limits.

The miniature houses are discussed at length in a book titled Fairy Tale Houses of Carmel, by Joanne Mathewson.

There's only one way to come out ahead of the pack.

ROBINSON JEFFERS

We are glad of the opportunity to dedicate this issue of The Pine Cone to a poet. To a living poet and a very great one.

Robinson Jeffers is 54 years old today. He and his wife have lived here since 1914.

They had planned to live abroad, but the declaration of World War I changed their minds. Jeffers wrote of that fateful summer, "...the August news turned us to this village of Carmel instead; and when the stage-coach topped the hill from Monterey, and we looked down through pines and sea-fogs on Carmel Bay, it was evident that we had come without knowing it to be our inevitable place."

This editor, frankly, does not feel qualified to speak of Robinson Jeffers' work. He is simply a sincere admirer who wishes the poet a very happy birthday.

SALARY RANGE IS WIDE FOR WORKERS IN CARMEL

One woman who moved to Carmel with her young daughter said she was unable to fulfill her career goals her and will return to her home in the East.

In her early 30s, she has a bachelor's degree in English literature. However, she said she must work 65 hours a week at two jobs to support herself and daughter.

"I think eventually you have to ask, 'Do I want to do this the rest of my life just to live in a beautiful place?'" she observed.

"I wouldn't mind working for a little money if I could see room for progression five years down the road," she lamented.

CARMEL PLAZA RUMORS:

Things get a little dull around the holidays, so people start inquiring about the veracity of the "I heard this or that rumors."

One of the grapevine informational sources has Saks Fifth Avenue opening a store in Carmel Plaza in the place left by the bankrupt Joseph Magnin store. Rather well informed sources say that a deal is in the works and something could be announced soon, maybe by the end of the month.

DORIS DAY'S BEST FRIENDS

By Doris Day

Giving Pets As Gifts

NOW THAT the holidays are over, our pet foundation phones are busier than usual.

You see, many people think that puppies and kittens make wonderful holiday gifts. They go to a pet shop and choose an adorable little companion for someone special — only to find out that "special someone" (a) can't have a pet in their rented apartment or house, (b) is allergic to pets, or (c) doesn't want the responsibility of a pet. Now what do you do?

The fact is, "living gifts" shouldn't be a surprise. Most people have very definite ideas about the type of pet they want — no matter what they say. When you have something particular in mind, nothing else will do. Then, of course, there are those of us who simply melt at the sight of any critter, large or small, young or old — but that's another story! Just keep in mind that choosing a pet is an important decision, and a very personal one, and it certainly should be made by the prospective owner, not a well-meaning friend.

CANINE FEEDING TIPS

People often stop me when I'm out to ask questions about pet care, and invariably I'm asked, "Doris, I've heard that you cook for your dogs and that they dine on fresh vegetables, turkey, chicken and pasta! Is that true?"

Yes, it is true. In fact, I stir-fry fresh vegetables for my dogs. Now, I know that some of you wouldn't consider stir-frying for yourselves and you're wondering why on earth I would take the time to do that for my pets. Well, I feel that it's just as important for them to have tasty, fresh, nutritious foods as it is for humans. Animals need and enjoy a varied and balanced diet, so don't think for a minute that your dog has to live on supermarket kibble and canned food. Supermarket brands may meet nutritional standards but we all know that fresh is best!

To begin, I have a large wok to prepare the vegetables — and by the way, these veggies are great-tasting. Have a bowl yourself while you're preparing your pet's food. I use cold-pressed sesame oil from the health food store. It's really delicious and great for your pet's skin. You may want to pre-cook the hard vegetables (like broccoli, turnips and carrots) in a steamer or microwave. Or slice them paper-thin by hand or in a food processor. Then stir-fry adding yellow crookneck and zucchini squash. Just keep tasting until they're cooked just right.

Chicken and ground turkey are excellent for your pets. I buy chicken leg quarters when they're on sale for 39-49 cents a pound. Boil them in a big pot with onions and garlic. Save the broth for the next day's meals, but be sure to skim the fat. The ground turkey can be prepared in the same way.

Brown rice or pasta makes a good starch to round out the meal. I always buy kibble from the pet foods store, NOT the supermarket.

My pets are fed twice a day and their mid-morning meal is the largest feeding, containing what I've mentioned above — veggies, meat, a starch, maybe some kibble.

Later in the day I might feed scrambled eggs with some low-fat cottage cheese, pasta, a little kibble, and perhaps some canned food added just for flavor. Again, I buy a high-quality canned food from the pet store and use it sparingly.

My dogs love mashed potatoes! When potatoes are on sale for 99 cents for 10 pounds I buy a sack, cook them and whip them with my electric whipper. Use extra-light milk if you have older pets, low-fat if you have youngsters.

Dogs love seafood so watch for the sales. You can broil it and use it in place of meat once or twice a week. Tuna is another favorite. If you're buying canned, use the water-packed variety and try adding it to the veggies, pasta, kibble and cottage cheese for a meal your dogs will adore.

The main reason for going into such detail about how I feed my pets is to let you know that you don't have to spend a great deal of money to provide fresh, wholesome meals. Watch the sales and when you're buying vegetables, meats and pasta or rice for your family, just add a bit more for your four-legged kids.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

A noble cause

IT WILL happen this way. On or about Jan. 20th, U.S. fighters and bombers will begin massive air raids against air bases and offensive and defensive missile sites in Kuwait and inside Iraq, probably beginning with a night attack.

Once the U.S. is convinced the skies are swept clear of all Iraqi airpower, massive bombing raids will begin against the entrenched Iraqi ground forces inside Kuwait and spread along the Iraq-Saudi Arabia border. These latter attacks will continue for up to two weeks while the last Army units arriving from Germany and the U.S. are moved up to the front and prepared for the assault by ground forces.

The assault on the ground, probably in early February, will be two-pronged, with a beach landing in southern Kuwait by the Marines and a high-speed sweep around the Iraqi flank by the Army's mechanized infantry and the main-battle tanks of our armored divisions. Once a significant portion of the Iraqi forces, already suffering from the aerial and artillery bombardment, turn to deal with this threat to their flank, the remaining U.S. and Allied forces will begin a frontal assault into Kuwait. This will be led by the U.S., British and Egyptian forces. The rest, including the French, will come along later to secure positions.

The main battle on the ground will be initially fought in Kuwait, but air attacks will be launched against military and industrial targets, particularly the chemical warfare production sites and any suspected atomic weapons development sites, inside Iraq. Army Rangers or Special Forces units will be parachuted into the Iraqi oil fields in an attempt to seize and hold them for the inevitable thrust into Iraq itself. The assault by Allied ground forces into Iraq will come either in pursuit of retreating Iraqi forces from Kuwait or in response to an offensive assault by Iraqi forces into Saudi Arabia from Iraq.

When the Allied assault from the air begins, Saddam will launch his aircraft and missiles at four targets: 1) Allied ground forces waiting to assault Kuwait, 2) U.S. and Saudi airfields in Saudi Arabia, 3) the oil fields in Saudi Arabia, and 4) Israel. His own oil fields are almost certainly mined for destruction in the event he seems to be losing the war.

His attack on Israel, successful or not, will elicit an offensive air assault by the Israelis against Iraq. This attack would have to be launched across Jordanian territory. Since only an iron-clad guaranty by King Hussein of Jordan could assure the Israelis that the Jordanian Air Force would not interfere with the progress of Israeli fighters and bombers into Iraq, and since no such guaranty is likely, the initial fighting would consist of the Israeli's knocking out the Jordanian airfields and shooting down its air force. This would erupt into a ground war between the Israelis and the Jordanians. When this happens, Syria will withdraw from the alliance against Iraq, the Egyptians will hesitate, but the Saudis will try to ignore it. Syria will commence threatening action against Iraq, but is unlikely to launch an assault. Libya will do likewise.

In the event even one Iraqi missile reaches Israel, presumably one with a chemical warhead, the dead in Israel could number in the tens of thousands. The presence of Israeli fighters in Iraq will prove extremely hazardous to U.S. operations because there has been no coordination at this point in the event of this inevitable occurrence. Some U.S. and Israeli fighters will shoot each other down. The combined air and ground assault will just as inevitably defeat the Iraqis, but it will grind to a slow, painful and expensive pace once inside Iraq. It will be over when Saddam is captured or assassinated by his own people.

In the first four weeks of fighting the U.S. will have at least 20,000 to 30,000 casualties and 3,000 to 4,000 dead. Saddam, once Iraq's defeat is inevitable (or sooner), will attempt to destroy his own oil fields. If successful, and if successful in his attacks on the Saudi fields, he will have disrupted 50 percent of the West's oil supplies. Despite the fact that this flow can and will be supplanted by the other oil-producing nations (we have more oil flowing now than before the invasion of Kuwait), oil prices will soar to over $100 a barrel. The U.S. recession will roar toward a worldwide recession of immense proportions, or perhaps even a depression. The U.S. deficit will become unmanageable but the despotism-monarchy of Kuwait, now returned to its throne, will offer to help keep us afloat financially.

The financial repercussions in Japan, whose stock market is tied to Japanese corporate investments made with borrowed money secured by inflated land values, is unpredictable.

However, the U.S. motorist will not have to pay $3 per gallon for gas. Was there ever a more noble cause?

In the 3rd century B.C., the courtiers of the royal court in China were required to carry doves in their mouths in order to sweeten their breath when addressing the emperor.

COAST & COUNTRY

By Barbara March

No such thing as a sure thing

IN A TV car commercial Ernest Hemingway's granddaughter, Joan admits that even though Papa loved the unknown, "I want a sure thing."

Recent statistics reveal that 75 percent of young men under the age of 24 still live with their parents.

People wait. They wait to leave home, they wait to go to college, they wait to marry. They wait to have children. When they do make a decision, like Hemingway's granddaughter buying her new car, they want assurances they've chosen a sure thing.

What few chances are taken are influenced by fear. The anxiety entrepreneurs have found a lucrative market. Playing to a generation shell shocked by impending war, AIDS, job insecurity, the falling economy and family instability, the professional behavior manipulators (advertising and public relations agencies included), have hyped both the real and imagined perils of life in the '90s. Millions of viewers identify with Joan Hemingway who wants a sure thing. Tell that to the bookmakers in Vegas.

We've lost our perspective. No one wants to take chances these days so:

Fish used to be safe, but not anymore. Witness the fanatic who spends 30 minutes microscopically deveining, denuding and nearly destroying 10 shrimp and then wonders if they're safe to eat.

Chicken and beef are out of the question. If you choose to court botulism and eat chicken, wash that cutting board and take those garlic cloves out of the olive oil.

Tropical oils! Heaven forbid. To paraphrase Mark Twain — "They want to take away everything that is good to eat and drink and all they leave us is hell."

Thrill-seekers go on packaged adventure tours because they know they will be safe. Would they go on an adventure by themselves? Some haven't ventured back to San Francisco since the earthquake. Never know when another shaker might hit. I'm surprised some entrepreneur hasn't come up with an adventure tour to The City's Marina District.

Today's conservative young parents are inundated with a maze of child-safe gadgets and gimmicks that appeal to parental pride and cautious concern for their offspring. How to choose? Which are truly boons and which are boondoggles?

There is a flickering light at the end of the tunnel. A young, single Salinas executive recently took a risk and told me he thought people were afraid to take chances today. Now that we're committed to the new decade of the '90s wouldn't it be nice to see people awakened from their comatose state of numbness and begin to experience life again, even if it means an occasional stubbed toe? Let's take that first step before our homogenized society turns sour.

ART HAPPENINGS

The Carmel Art Association kicked off the New Year with an introspective retrospective — a self-portrait show. More than 40 member artists contributed images of how they see themselves to the new exhibition. CAA member Ron Grauer, who opened a one-man-show of landscapes at the Art Association Galleries, painted five renditions of himself!

Chinese emigre artist Zhong Yu's scroll paintings are featured at the Cherry Foundation's latest exhibition, which opened this past weekend. Philip Flavin played the koto and Philip Cardeiro answered questions about the Art Asia Collection.

GLOBAL-BY-THE-SEA

Our corner of the world will be visited by a number of international and national personalities in the next three months.

You read it here first, again. Henry Kissinger is confirmed as the famous mystery figure mentioned earlier in "Coast & Country" who will be attending the AT&T Tournament. Not to play golf, but to speak to AT&T execs.

The AT&T RSVP celebrity players' list currently includes Clint Eastwood, Bryant Gumbel, Don Johnson, Huey Lewis, Craig

PLAN TO go by the Carmel Art Association to see how your favorite artist views him or herself. The CAA "Self-Portrait" show will run through Feb. 6. Miguel Dominguez posed with his likeness at the recent opening. (Chris Hulse photo.)

T. Nelson, Tommy Smothers, John Elway and Peter Ueberroth. Kevin Costner and Bill Murray were invited but hadn't responded at press time. Wouldn't you love to see Murray repeat his golfing scene from Caddyshack when he lopped the heads off all the flowers in the neatly planted borders at the country club?

Cypress Point got out just in time.

Filming commitments forced Liv Ullman to bow out of a speaking appearance at the annual meetings of the Community Hospital Auxiliary and Community Hospital Foundation scheduled for Saturday. Continued on page 15

President John Kennedy's former executive chef Rene Verdon and American Express Publishing Corp.'s executive VP James Berrien have signed up as judges for this year's Gourmet Gala Jan. 26.

Luciano Pavarotti's appearance in March is still a couple months away but Hilde Jackson is ready now. Hilde is the lucky winner of the pair of tickets to the performance donated by Carmel Plaza. The tickets were one of the prizes at the Alliance on Aging drawing held Dec. 14 at Carmel Plaza.

GUIDE TO GIVING

"Coast & Country" has discussed the big business of charity in a previous column. The persuasive pitches that donor candidates must decipher will be coming at us in even greater numbers in 1991. Before you write that check here are points to consider.

1. Beware of look-alikes. Some obscure charities purposely have chosen names that sound much like other, well-known organizations. For example, the American Cancer Society is different than the National Cancer Society. Be certain you're supporting the charity that is right for you.

2. Before you make a decision, check out the charity's entire program. Ask for all the printed material that is available and in the case of local groups, talk to a board member you know and trust.

3. Ask where your money will go. How much of each dollar goes directly to the charity, how much to administration and overhead? You're entitled to see a copy of the charity's audited financial report, including a statement of expenses.

For more information on standards of ethical fund-raising and operations you can contact two private watchdog groups: The National Charities Information Bureau (NCIB), 19 Union Square West, 6th Floor, New York, NY, 10003 and the Philanthropic Advisory Service (PAS) of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, Dept. 023, Washington, D.C. 20042.

GOIN' TO THE CHAPEL

The first weekend of January is typically the slowest time of the year for resorts in this area, but Highlands Inn was completely booked last Saturday and Sunday.

Richard Ziman, owner of Pacific Financial Group, and his bride Daphna Edwards took over Highlands Inn last weekend when they hosted 120 overnight guests who journeyed up the coast to attend their wedding. No expense was spared. Jazz musician John Handy and his band were brought in to play for the private bash that encompassed the entire resort. Ziman and Edwards were wed in a ceremony held in the Highlands' famous wedding gazebo.

UNDER WRAPS

Cocktail conversation this past holiday season went something like this.

"All the hardware stores are out of pipe insulation and we had to use the baby's disposal diapers and silver electrician's tape to wrap our pipes."

"That's nothing, I heard the merchants at the Barnyard used bubble wrap to insulate their water pipes and the people at the Hyatt used rolled-up bedsheets as insulation."

CITY LIGHTS

Former Monterey County residents Sara Schmitz and Janine Chicourrat greeted folks from home at the SRO grand opening of Vinoteca/Jackson Fillmore, an eclectic Italian restaurant located next to the Hotel Juliana at 586 Bush St. in San Francisco. Sara was director of public relations at the Monterey Plaza and now holds that position with Kimco Hotel Management. Janine, director of sales at Hotel Bedford, is the daughter of Jean and Burt Reese of Del Mesa Carmel.

Seniors program needs participants

In September 1987 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department began a program to benefit senior citizens of the community in two ways.

First, senior citizens who live alone and are often "shut-in" their residences with little or no contact with friends or relatives, can be provided with the security of knowing that someone does truly care about their welfare. Also, those concerned with their physical well-being will have someone to check on them daily.

Second, seniors interested in participating in some type of community program will be able to work with those in their own peer group by volunteering to place these daily telephone calls to the recipients of the program.

Currently, the department has a full staff of volunteers, however, anyone wishing to be placed on an alternate list to fill in when another caller is unable to make it or is away on vacation, is encouraged to call for information.

Anyone living alone, whether concerned about their health or not, and all those seniors wishing to make new friends or just have the opportunity to talk with someone new each day is encouraged to participate in this program.

Telephone calls are made daily by a volunteer beginning at 9:30 a.m. No participant is ever restricted to their home; they need only contact the police department in advance if they plan to be away during the time the calls are placed to avoid any confusion. If someone fails to answer their telephone, a patrol unit is sent by to conduct a welfare check at the residence.

In addition to these daily telephone "visitations," social events are also planned periodically as well as home visitations upon request.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this program should contact Desk Officer Cathy Dampier at Carmel Police Department, 624-6403.

Such enthusiasm

TO SAY that newly hired CBA executive director Toni Jepson is embracing her position with gusto would be an understatement.

She's downright ardent.

"I'm having so much fun; I just love it," says Jepson, who has been at the helm for about a month. "It gives me the opportunity of doing a variety of things."

It appears Jepson's initial goal is to nudge CBA members into, pardon the expression, "networking."

"The real thrust this year is on participation," she says. "All of us should work together to make this a better place."

At last week's CBA general membership meeting she cajoled everyone in the audience into introducing themselves to their neighbor sitting on their right.

Now, she is introducing the idea of a mixer to our fair town.

The first such gathering is slated for 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, at the new Carmel Pine Cone digs at Fourth Avenue (south side) between San Carlos and Mission. Wine and cheese will be offered as an enticement.

Other ideas being bandied about include noontime CBA meetings with an educational format; customer-service seminars; working with the city on its 75th birthday party; and meetings geared solely for helping new business owners.

Jepson has also expanded the hours at the intimate CBA office — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, and, during the peak season, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

As an aside, Jepson is looking for a new, more visible location for the CBA offices, currently located on San Carlos across the street from Nielsen's Market. She doesn't have much to offer in the way of money, but that's not stopping her.

"We think it's a great deal (for property owners), we'll pay in terms of traffic," she says, referring to the large number of visitors who seek out the office in search of information.

She also plans to have a fax, computer and copier on-line by the end of January.

State of the city message...CBA President Gary Luce advises locals that Carmel has not remained unscathed from the perils of that "R" word — recession.

With that in mind he, and the CBA board of directors, have established goals for the year.

Much like Jepson, Luce suggests that CBA step up their participation in local business activities.

"As the organization continues to become more viable, we hope to have our membership become our best spokesperson," says Luce.

Luce adds that the CBA will continue to work with the city and residential community in seeking common goals.

There will also be a move to bring back more "high-quality" overnight guests through promotional activities.

"We're looking forward to a very exciting, challenging year," Luce said. "It is going to take the joint efforts of the entire community working together to meet our goals."

For those with a powerful appetite...That would be newly opened Cactus Jack's on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth (across the street from the Hog's Breath), owned by the people who bring you Jack London's just a few doors down.

The Southwestern and Mexican-style cuisine features fresh hand-made tortilla chips, nachos, quesadillas, deviled crab flautas, soups (including black bean soup and Louisiana gumbo), salads, full dinners, including fajitas, enchiladas, burritos and Snapper Vera Cruz, as well as delicacies from the Southwest — smoked baby back ribs, grilled fish and chicken, New York steaks, sand dabs and Henry's Mississippi fried chicken.

They opened for lunch Jan. 8 to a steady stream of customers. They open at 11:30 a.m. and serve until 10 p.m. For more information or to call regarding private parties and catering, call 626-0909.

A welcome addition...That would be Linda Van Houtte, who has taken over as branch manager and escrow officer for First American Title Co.'s new Carmel office at Fourth and Mission.

Van Houtte brings more than 20 years of experience to her post, including 14 years in the Carmel area.

She served as past treasurer of the Monterey Bay Escrow Association and founding member of the Association of Christians in Real Estate.

Also, First American has appointed Lisa Connally as assistant escrow officer.

Connally began her career in the title insurance field in 1983 in Texas and moved to the Carmel area three years ago.

Good news for those in the market for a marketing strategy...An enthusiastic Wendy Brickman has been appointed as marketing consultant for the peninsula branch of Kohn Communications, a Los Angeles-based marketing consultant firm.

Just for your information, Kohn Communications is the baby of Larry Kohn, who is the son of Adeline Kohn, who recently worked so diligently at The Pine Cone, and is now enjoying the "good life" of retirement.

Anyway, Brickman, who says she's pleased to be away from Smog City, will help businesses develop and carry out programs and services aimed at increasing profits.

"Wendy Brickman brings to Kohn Communications a wealth of experience, knowledge and enthusiasm," says Kohn. "She'll be invaluable in the marketing of our low-cost, high-impact marketing techniques which maximize a company's ability to acquire and keep profitable clientele."

Kohn Communications has forged new ground in Los Angeles, where Kohn leads seminars composed of non-competing, but compatible, business owners, who learn to share their wealth of information and refer clients to one another.

Brickman recently served as telemarketing manager for Pacific Arts Video, formerly a Carmel-based home video company.

For more information call 375-2949.

Bye-bye Spalding...That's right, after sponsoring the Spalding Invitational Pro-Am in Pebble Beach for the past 15 years, Spalding has stepped aside and Ben Hogan Co. is taking over.

Coincidentally, Ben Hogan is an offshoot of Ben Hogan Properties, which recently purchased the Pebble Beach Co.

Next year's tourney will take place between Jan. 2-5, with the purse increased from $300,000 to $400,000.

More news from Pebble...Los Angeles-based Gutman Associates has added the Pebble Beach Co.'s property division to its account. The concern already oversees promotion for The Resorts of Pebble Beach.

The company will now promote the resort's two hotel and meeting complexes, The Lodge at Pebble Beach, The Inn at Spanish Bay and three golf courses.

on Saturday, Jan. 12, 10 a.m. to noon, at the Pacific Grove Community Center, 515 Junipero Ave. The fee is $25, payable at the course. Advance enrollment is required and may be made by phoning 648-4455.

The course instructor is Sgt. William Kennedy, Pacific Grove Police Department, who explains that the following individuals, under state law, cannot possess tear gas: Persons who have been convicted of a felony, persons who have been convicted of any crime involving assault, persons addicted to the use of narcotics, persons who have been convicted of the misuse of tear gas, and persons under the age of 16. However, 16- and 17-year-olds must phone the number above and request a consent form to be signed by a parent or adult guardian.

The state tear gas license will be issued immediately after the Jan. 12 course. State-approved tear gas devices will be available for purchase after a person receives the license.

PEACE WALK SET FOR JAN. 13

A Monterey Peninsula Peace Walk, in the spirit of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. will be held on Sunday, Jan. 13. Peace walkers will assemble at three locations on the Monterey Peninsula and proceed towards the Custom House Plaza, Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey, where a Peace Meeting will be held at 1 p.m.

All walkers will assemble at 12 noon at the following locations: Peace walkers from Pebble Beach, Pacific Grove, and New Monterey will assemble at the bicycle walking path opposite the American Tin Cannery Factory Outlet; walkers from Monterey, Big Sur, Carmel Valley, and Carmel will assemble outside Colton Hall, Monterey; those peace walkers from Seaside, Sand City and Del Rey Oaks will meet at the bicycle walking path opposite K-Mart.

The Peace Walk is sponsored by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in cooperation with the Juneteenth Committee and Cavalier Social Club of Seaside.

For further information peace walkers can contact peace walk monitors at: Pacific Grove, 372-2718; Monterey, 372-6001; Seaside, 394-5152.

The purpose of the peace walk and rally is to urge a peaceful solution to the war now being prepared. In the words of Martin Luther King, Jr. "There may have been a time when war served as a negative good by preventing the spread and growth of an evil force, but the very destructive power of modern weapons eliminates the possibility that war may any longer serve as a negative good."

For Peace Walk information contact Joyce Vandever at 372-6001.

GENTRAIN SOCIETY PRESENTS GOLF LECTURE

On Wednesday, Jan. 16, the Gentrain Society will present Robert (Bob) Zoller speaking on "Golf: Past, Present and Future." The lecture will be at 1:15 p.m. in LF 102.

Zoller is an authority on golf and golf courses. He was superintendent of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and is president of the Monterey Bay Area Golf Course Association. Bob hopes to answer many questions about golf and golf courses on the peninsula.

The Gentrain lectures are open to the public without charge.

ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMIST SPEAKS

"In Search of a Better Future" will be discussed by environmental economist Hazel Henderson at Monterey Peninsula College's Lecture Forum 103 Thursday, Jan. 17 at 4 p.m.

Dr. Henderson is expected to explore economics in the new world order, according to Steve Brooks, chairman of the New Forum, sponsor for her appearance. "You might also say that her title will be 'The Politics of Planetary Survival,'" Brooks said.

Both of her books, Creating Alternative Futures and The Politics of the Solar Age, have been translated into German, Japanese, Dutch, Swedish and Chinese.

Henderson held the Horace Allbright Chair in Conservation at the University of California in Berkeley, and was Regent's Lecturer at the University of California in Santa Barbara.

In addition to contributions in 11 anthologies on economics and the environment, she has published articles in more than 200 journals, including U.S. News and World Report, Harvard Business Review, The Nation, Columbia Journalism Review, Time, and American Management Review.

In her talk at MPC, she wants to address ways in which a wide variety of citizen action movements are driving changes in

Food for the needy

STUDENTS AT Carmel schools collected thousands of canned and other non-perishable foods for those on the Monterey Peninsula who might otherwise have gone hungry during the past holiday season. Some 40 elementary, middle and high schools in the area joined together to collect food in support of the annual Salvation Army Christmas Food Basket Program. Once collected the food was transported to the Salvation Army center in Seaside where it was sorted and packed into individual boxes for distribution to those in need. This year nearly 1,000 families from the peninsula benefitted from this program. Here students from Carmel High School helped load a Salvation Army truck with boxes of food.

Admission is $5, and $3 for students. Assured seating can be arranged by calling 372-8887. For more information, call 624-4268.

GIRL SCOUT COOKIE SALES BEGIN JAN. 12

The annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale begins Jan. 12 in the tri-county area with more than 3,500 girls participating in the effort to earn money for local activities and for council-wide programs.

Door-to-door orders will be taken through Jan. 27. Delivery to customers and booth sales are scheduled from Feb. 16 through March 3.

Seven varieties of cookies are available. Only vegetable shortening is used and the cookies are made with no preservatives. The selling price is $2.50 per box. Girl Scouts across the country are joining in the sale to earn money for programs in their communities. One in every five cookies eaten in the United States is a Girl Scout cookie. The sale dates from the early 1930's when Girl Scouts in Philadelphia baked cookies to raise money to improve their Girl Scout Camp. In 1936, the first franchise cookies were baked and authorized by Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. as a national program for fund development in local areas.

All profit raised by Girl Scouts in the Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council is used locally for troop/group programs, camperships, adult volunteer training, day camp and resident camp activities, community service projects, and area-wide programs in substance abuse education, science and math, teen pregnancy prevention, environmental action, youth suicide and child abuse prevention, acceptance of ethnic diversity, and values clarification.

More than 6,000 girls and adult volunteers participated in the council's programs during the 1980's. Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council serves youth in Monterey, San Benito, and Santa Cruz counties and is a member of the United Way.

OBITUARIES

Patrick Franklin

Patrick Wayne Franklin of Carmel, at various times in his life a singer, soldier, actor, television director, author, music critic and arts advocate, died Dec. 16 in Carmel Valley at the Hospice of the Central Coast of complications related to AIDS. He was 53.

At the time of his death Mr. Franklin was The Herald's music critic, although he had been on sick leave since August. On Nov. 19, in an outpouring of affection for him by the area arts community and The Herald, he was bade farewell in an evening of song, dance, parody and poetry held at Monterey Peninsula College. Its organizers dubbed the celebration "Patrick's Day."

Born in Louisville, Ky., March 25, 1937, Mr. Franklin moved as a child with his parents to Sarasota, Fla., returning to Kentucky at age 16 to attend the University of Louisville on full scholarship as a Ford Foundation Scholar. He graduated from Columbia University in New York in 1957 with a bachelor's degree in dramatic arts.

Trained as a classical singer, he had planned a career in opera but gave it up, he later said, when he decided that his vocal talent was not equal to the task. Nevertheless he soon took a part as a singer in a road show production of Can Can, eventually becoming the musical's stage manager.

In 1959, following a stint in the Army, Mr. Franklin went to work in New York for the CBS television network, first in the mailroom, where he sorted letters with future pop superstar Barry Manilow, then as an assistant to radio and television personality Arthur Godfrey. He eventually rose to the rank of director of daytime soap operas like The Guiding Light, and Search for Tomorrow.

Mr. Franklin left New York for Berkeley in 1976 and moved to the Monterey Peninsula in December of that year.

He managed a hardware store in Carmel Valley, hosted a popular opera program for a local classical music radio station and wrote restaurant reviews for California magazine. He was the founder of Stonewall Features Syndicate, supplying weekly newspapers throughout the United States with columns and feature material. Before coming to The Herald, he wrote for many other area publications.

Mr. Franklin sold his first short story to a national publication in 1979. In 1985 he published a Monterey Peninsula dining guide, Eating in Eden, while The Uncertainty of Strangers, a book of his short stories was published in 1986. He was the recipient of numerous writing honors, including the California Short Story Award.

Associated with The Herald since 1980, Mr. Franklin became its full-time music critic in 1984. In addition to his reviews of classical music concerts and vocal and dance recitals, he wrote feature stories and a weekly column, Reprise. His wide-ranging interests and expertise made him much sought after by editors and writers who needed fast, accurate answers, quotes or anecdotes.

Mr. Franklin was a member of the Directors' Guild, the Screen Actors' Guild, Mensa and Intertel. He was a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity in college and was named an honorary Kentucky Colonel by the governor of that state.

Mr. Franklin had made his home for many years with his longtime companion, Dennis Williamson of Carmel. He is survived by his brother, Timothy of Carmel; a sister, Carla Griffin of Louisville, Ky.; three nieces and a nephew.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, with inurnment at Monterey City Cemetery.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Patrick Franklin Fund of Youth Music Monterey, 2959 Monterey-Salinas Highway, Monterey 93940, or to the Monterey County AIDS Project, 780 Hamilton Ave., Seaside 93955, or to the Hospice of the Central Coast, 1015 Cass St., Monterey 93940.

Rose H. Lester

Rose Horwitz Lester of Carmel Valley, who was a finance administrator for a New Jersey manufacturing firm, died Dec. 30 at the Hospice of the Central Coast. She was 73.

Mrs. Lester was born Aug. 12, 1917, in Jersey City, N.J. A resident of Carmel Valley since 1983, she worked for more than 20 years for Republic Metal Products in Springfield, N.J.

She was a member of the Monterey Bridge Club and a volunteer for the Carmel Valley library.

Survivors include her husband, Sid; two daughters, Nancy Mayher of New York City and Jane Lester of Putney, Vt.; and a brother, Leo Harrison of Springfield, N.J.

At her request, no services were held. Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, and ashes will be scattered at sea.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions go to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey 93942.

Patrick D. Fitzgerald

Patrick Desmond Fitzgerald, a Carmel Valley resident for 29 years, died Dec. 29 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 69.

Mr. Fitzgerald was born July 27, 1921, near Dublin, Ireland. He was a merchant marine for 15 years, starting during World War II and ending in 1955.

He was a resident of London during the German bombing at the start of World War II. He later served on tankers in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters.

He was a member of the Carmel Foundation.

Survivors include his son, Rory Nissen of San Leandro; a sister, Dorothy Memry of Upton-upon-Severn, England; and one granddaughter. He also leaves a longtime friend and companion, Allan Dickinson of Carmel Valley.

At Mr. Fitzgerald's request, no services were held. Cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, with inurnment at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions go to the SPCA of Monterey County.

Leonora Thompson

Leonora Gill Thompson of Carmel, a retired teacher, died at a convalescent hospital in Monterey on Dec. 25. She was 99.

Born in San Antonio, Texas on Nov. 29, 1891, Miss Thompson had been a resident of Carmel on and off since 1931, moving here from Palo Alto.

A graduate of the Sargeant School of Physical Education in Cambridge, Mass., Harvard University, and University of Wisconsin, she taught school for 34 years in San Francisco prior to her retirement. Miss Thompson also attended the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles.

She was a member of the Palo Alto Art Association.

She is survived by a niece, Jill Frederick of Glendale.

At her request, no services will be held. The California Cremation Society is in charge of arrangements and inurnment will be at Alta Mesa Cemetery in Palo Alto.

The family suggest that any memorial contributions be sent to the Salvation Army, the Carmel Foundation or the American Red Cross of Carmel.

Learn how to care for aging parent

Aging is a family affair. Learn more about the aging process, communication skills, and how to care for older family members in the class, "Creative Caring: Life with an Aging Parent" being offered at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula on Wednesday evenings beginning Jan. 16.

Instructors will be nurses Barbara Parker and Pat Peabody. Fee is $40 for two family members.

Class will take place 5 p.m. Wednesdays, Jan. 16-March 6 in the reception area of the Outpatient Surgery Center.

To register or for more information, call 625-4708.

Mensa schedules qualifying test

Mensa, the international "high I.Q. society," will administer qualifying tests in Salinas on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 2. For reservations and information write to Mensa, 1029 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove, CA 93950, or call Francis Cartier, 375-8065.

'An Evening of Poetry and Music'

The Portofino Cafe in Pacific Grove will present "An Evening of Poetry and Music" at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 16. Poet David Gitin and guitarist Leonard Paschini will perform original poems and music, both singly and together.

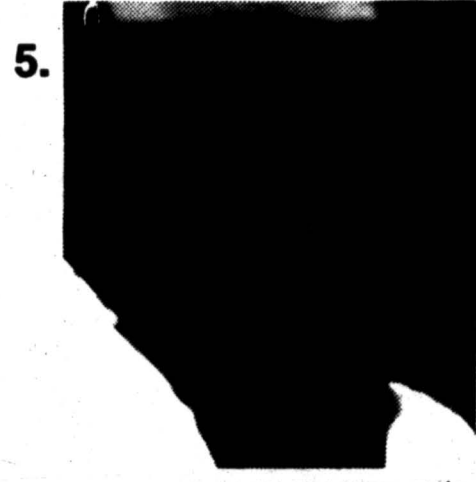

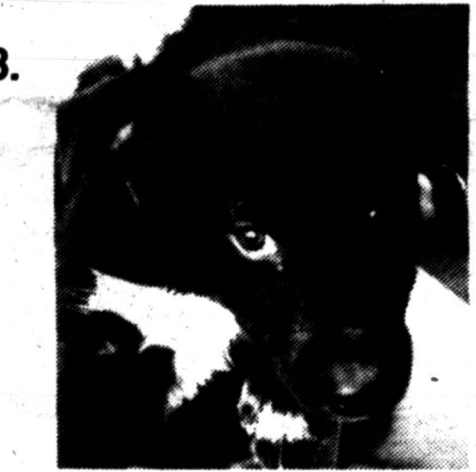

Gitin is the author of seven published books of poetry. His most recent collection, "Fire Dance," celebrates family and the healing powers of love. A.R. Ammons says "his work touches a kind of Zen infinitude" and Michael McClure says "Gitin is a master of subtle rhythms."

Paschini is a guitarist who, after his discharge from the Navy, became a member of the Monterey band, The Bitter Seeds. The group had a cult following, opening for such acts as the Paul Butterfield Blues Band at the Fillmore.

Portofino Cafe is located downstairs in the Pacific Grove Plaza, 620 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. Admission is $5. For reservations, call 373-7379.

The SPCA of Monterey County, a Humane Society, has many wishes for the new year, and the biggest wish of all is that people would quit the unnecessary breeding of cats and dogs! Until people in our community become responsible adults, we will have to continue to kill animals. Until people in our community realize the cruelty they are doing by allowing their pets to breed without the guarantee of homes for all of the puppies and kittens, we will have to continue to kill animals. Please, for the sake of the existing homeless animals, don't breed your dog or cat. Your compassion about animals is needed now, more than ever. If you are thinking about letting your dog or cat breed, we invite you to pay a visit to the SPCA's euthanasia room and see the animals whose only crime is that no one wants them.

The SPCA, The Carmel Pine Cone and The Pacific Grove Monarch as well as the merchants on this page present this feature for you. Interested in adopting one of these animals? Visit The SPCA of Monterey County's animal shelter, Monday thru Friday, 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., or Weekends, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., at 1002 Monterey Salinas Hwy. 68.

PLEASE NOTE: Pictured animals are subject to prior adoption or return to owner. Adoptions are to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other adorable animals in the shelter. Come on out! Call 373-2631 or 422-4721, ext. 233 for more information.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

Drivers and other volunteers are needed to deliver 280 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 280 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 25 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 25 routes, four of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals on Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up short-handed. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

More than 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams
Because of health gains in the 20th Century, American women are surviving to older age in unprecedented numbers, the National Institute on Aging (NIA) points out. Its brochure, "Health Resources for Older Women," notes that "old age has both problems and potentials." While it is a time when illness occurs more frequently, the majority of older women are relatively healthy and independent, NIA says, and "the later years present a time to achieve advanced career goals and a time to explore new opportunities..."

After-school programs keep children of working couples occupied and out of trouble, but something more has been added to a program for 6-to-12 year olds in Port Chester, New York. "We were looking for nurturing listeners who would give the children the one-on-one attention they really crave," said a program coordinator. After a training course, elderly volunteers now join in the after-school activities and apply their own distinctive skills and talents. A 72-year-old woman sports-lover wowed skeptical boys on the basketball court by sinking a basket on her first try. But mostly, as another volunteer put it, "I'm giving them someone to talk to." Said a third-grader: "They're nice. They care about you when you get hurt." ***

From the Carmel Pine Cone
Jan. 13, 1983

Oh Lord, be pleased to bless our beloved city of Monterey, her mayor, the city fathers and Peter Coniglio and his consortium of entrepreneurs who have organized and have assumed the risk of this enterprise, and whom we presume are picking up the tab for this party. Finally, we ask a blessing on the honest-to-goodness paisanos who would never miss a free party and who have gathered here in large numbers to participate in this bitter-sweet ceremony.

Symbolically we bid farewell to a famous landmark — The San Carlos Hotel — that has received a death sentence. We shed a tear of nostalgia over the building that has been a silhouette on the skyline above Calle Principal since 1927, as long as some of us can remember.

In the same breath that we say "Requiescat in Pace," we add "Viva," long life to the new transmogrified San Carlos. She is like the legendary Phoenix, the bird of mythology who lived to a venerable old age, burned herself to ashes on a funeral pyre only to rise youthful and alive from her ashes to live for many more years.

We stand in front of the bronze statue of Don Gaspar de Portola given to us by the present King of Spain, Don Juan Carlos Primero (who was not named for the hotel). On June 3, 1770, Don Gaspar de Portola and Padre Junipero Serra founded Monterey as the capital of California and established the Presidio, Mission and Royal Chapel under the patronage of an Italian Saint San Carlos Borromeo, the Cardinal Archbishop of Milano.

If anyone asks you what Don Gaspar de Portola is holding in his right hand, let them share the secret. It is an Annie Oakley, a complimentary reservation for the Governors Suite in the new San Carlos Hotel. Now in Latin, the language of prayer used by San Carlos Borromeo, we say: "Benedictio Dei Omnipotentis, Patris et Filia et Spiritus Sancti." Amen.

JILL ENFIELD began painting her photographs with oils in 1985. She works "to achieve a dreamlike effect without significantly altering reality." The untitled image reproduced here is originally in color. Enfield's photographs have been exhibited widely. They are featured in the permanent collections of the Vision Gallery in San Francisco, the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris and the Ledel Gallery in New York. They can be viewed through March 3 in the galleries of the Photographic Center of the Monterey Peninsula.

Photographic Center features hand-tinted images

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC Center of Monterey Peninsula announces the opening of a new show entitled: "Hand-Colored Images, by A.V. Pike, Jill Enfield and Steve Pike," which will be on view from Jan. 11 - March 3. All three photographers work with black and white prints as a foundation, to which they apply color, using a variety of different techniques to achieve the desired, final image.

Santa Cruz photographer A.V. Pike has a background in art, and specifically, life drawing. The human form figures prominently in her photographic images which are then colored with either watercolors, oils or colored pencils, or a combination of the above.

A.V. Pike has developed a series of colored images, entitled, "The Santa Fe Series." She describes Santa Fe as "A state of mind, not a specific geographic location. It is that place where the primitive animal world meets the contemporary scientific world; that point where coyote the trickster meets the Fauvist of Matisse."

Jill Enfield comes from a family of photographers. She began painting her photographs with oils in 1985. She works, "to achieve a dreamlike affect without significantly altering reality."

Steve Pike, from Missoula, Montana, has been a professional musician for much of his life; his visual work is closely related to his aptitude for sound.

The opening reception for "Hand-Colored Images..." will be held on Friday, Jan. 18, from 6-8 p.m. The exhibit will be on view at the Photographic Center, in Carmel's Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth. Gallery hours are 1-5 p.m. daily. Admission is free. For details, call 625-5181.

Originals by Jan Wagstaff gathered at York School gallery

COVER UP," an exhibition of works by Jan Wagstaff, York School's California Arts Council Artist in Residence, will be on view in the York School Chapel Gallery from Jan. 12 to Feb. 8. A reception for the artist will be held Saturday, Jan. 12 from 4 to 6 p.m. with the York School Early Music Ensemble performing. The public is invited.

Jan Wagstaff was awarded the Artist in School residency through the California Arts Council based on her achievement and Wagstaff's proposed project. The York School is the only school in the county to have been awarded this residency.

Wagstaff's work depicts images of windows, screens, and garments. She states, "These are personal symbols which are used as a means of seeing or not seeing. They serve to protect, reflect and distort my view of what is around me as well as how I view myself."

This study and introspection developed out of Wagstaff's residency at York. Under direction, the art students at York are focusing on internal and external landscapes and being asked how they view themselves in the environment. Wagstaff has used the landscape for some time as a point of departure in her own work. Her residency has moved her to investigate and show how she also views herself in the landscape.

After a 10 year hiatus from teaching, Wagstaff says that teaching is, again, an important aspect of her life and career as an artist. She states, "Interaction with the students gives voice to the ideas that get buried while working alone in the studio. By nature of my residency at York, the classroom provides an arena for guest speakers, field trips and the naive questioning from students that generates some fundamental ideas in creating."

Wagstaff uses mixed media and acrylic on canvas. Some of the canvases utilize a translucent material woven into the surface of the paintings.

Wagstaff earned both her B.F.A. and M.F.A. in art from the California College of Arts and Crafts. After teaching for seven years at California State University at Chico, she moved to the Monterey Peninsula to pursue her painting on a full-time basis. She has had numerous exhibitions of her work throughout the country which include the Oakland Museum; Museum of Art, Washington State University and The Heron School of Art Gallery in Indianapolis. She is represented in major collections.

The opening of the York School Chapel Gallery celebrates the new exhibition space at York.

THREE WAITING is also part of the new collection of paintings by Jan Wagstaff opening Saturday, Jan. 12. Wagstaff is the York School's California Arts Council Artist in Residence.

New John Huling album evokes spirit of the coast

By ANNE PAPINEAU

AN AURAL transcription of the Big Sur coastline, replete with lapping waves and the voices of whales, is embodied in John Huling's newest album, Shorelines.

Huling, who has both his home and studio in Pacific Grove, creates albums of music that soothe the spirit. And he logs his achievements at a brisk pace.

Huling's followers are New Age music lovers around the world. "The music is very big in Europe and Japan," he admitted.

But even those who've never sought out that musical genre may have encountered Huling's compositions on public television programs or even during a visit to the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

Huling scored the soundtrack for the "Sharks" exhibit which opens Sunday, Jan. 13 at the world-famous aquarium on Cannery Row. He also devised music for the "Living Treasures of the Pacific" show featured there last year.

Huling composed and performed the music for two videos included in "Sharks." The multimedia show takes viewers deep into the mysterious world of the sea's most feared predators. But of some 360 species of sharks, less than one in five pose even a remote threat to humans.

"One part of the exhibit is about the myths of sharks, and getting past the myths," the composer explained. "The last video in the exhibit explains that we are the caretakers of the sharks. Surprisingly, they're threatened."

Huling's Pacific Grove workplace, his studio, is also his "sanctuary. It's my creative space. Everyone has a special place they go to. I go in there and shut out the rest of the world."

For Shorelines, Huling composed and played 14 original pieces. Each is inspired by the coast. Huling and his wife recently journeyed from Big Sur north to the Olympic Peninsula in Washington.

As on his previous albums, Open Spaces and Blue Canyons, Huling plays all the instruments. This is also true of Shorelines. For his newest work, he plays bongos and other percussive instruments in a piece called "Turtles Dance." He makes use of the sounds of birds recorded at Andrew Molera State Park near Big Sur.

"Paradise" is punctuated by lightning and thunder. In "Forever," a piece dedicated to wife Joni, Huling solos on flute.

Huling describes his music as "relaxing yet happy." Composing it, however, "is always a challenge."

'One part of the exhibit is about the myths of sharks, and getting past the myths. The last video in the exhibit explains that we are the caretakers of the sharks. Surprisingly, they're threatened.'

— John Huling

He challenged himself further last autumn by taking on a multi-state concert tour. Whereas his albums feature Huling performing on synthesizer and a variety of instruments, his live concerts showcase the composer's artistry on piano. He said he hopes to book a solo concert in Carmel's Sunset Theater that will feature videos and other special effects.

Music lovers can meet John Huling during member's night at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Members will be admitted from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 12. Huling will autograph copies of Shorelines.

The general public can encounter Huling's artistry in music stores, on radio and in the opening and concluding videos that come to life during "Sharks." This special exhibition continues at the Monterey Bay Aquarium through Oct. 20.

Learn to play chess

Chess instruction for beginners is offered on the first Wednesday of each month in the Monterey Public Library Community Room. Times are 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The library is at 625 Pacific St., Monterey.

Enrollment is continuous and newcomers are always welcome. There are no fees. The program is sponsored by the instructor, Dr. Ed Stachowiak.

For additional information, call 624-7216.

Reserve with toll-free line

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

PACIFIC GROVE composer John Huling recently completed a concert tour of several states. His newest album, Shorelines, is now available in stores. Huling scored the video soundtracks for the "Sharks" exhibition opening Sunday, Jan. 13 at the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Soul Deep

EXCLUSIVE: The band Oregon claims a strong following round here. So much has been written about the wide-ranging aggregation that new information came as a surprise. Now this column can break the story. One Bombay woman's soul-deep and bluesy vocals about Godhead were a healing force that helped Oregon survive the sudden roadway death of original percussionist Collin Walcott.

Oregon — keyboardist-guitarist Ralph Towner, bassist Glen Moore, reedman Paul McCandless, tabla-trap drummer Trilok Gurtu. The truth emerged during 1990 (the group's 20th anniversary) via a series of chats with these men. I met with them last spring-time following their gig at Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz. What were the ground rules? How would they like to proceed? "Talk with us one at a time," Glen answered. "It'll be more fun." The others agreed.

Telephone conversations occurred over the next several weeks with three of the four at their West Coast homes — Moore (Portland), Towner (Seattle), McCandless (Bolinas). Trilok lived in Germany; we got together at an Oakland hotel while he was there for a nearby job with guitarist John McLaughlin.

The 20th anniversary album finally was cut in Germany last month. At this writing, Vera Brandes of the Intuition label was in New York seeking a United States distribution deal.

Oregon works with Open Door Management (Los Angeles area). That firm's Bill Traut said: "I have distribution contacts too. A new tour starts in early April. We'll make sure that the album sees release by then."

So, The four broke off from a larger band in 1970. Glen: "The Paul Winter Consort was very static, though a marvelous show. It was a Parent situation (and) we did not part unhappily. We were inclined to take more chances. Paul saw us as pioneers going out. Ralph and I talked about Oregon — that became the band name by default."

They toured, wrote, followed their lights instrumentally, built a

La Parisienne

A black comedy of 19th century morals framed within the story of a very proper, real-life Parisian matron forms the foundation for La Parisienne. The sly wit of playwright Henri Becque dissects bourgeois life in the 1890s, domestic and bureaucratic, without using a single unseemly word.

The Staff Players Repertory Company brings Becque's triumph to the stage of the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel. Opening performance is set 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 10.

The cast includes Marlie Avant as Clotilde Du Mesnil, Alan Smith as M. Lafont, Jason Bond as Adolph Du Mesnil, Cynthia Womack as Adele and John Farmanesh as M. Simpson.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until Feb. 9. Matinees are scheduled at 2:30 p.m. Sundays, Jan. 20, 27 and Feb. 3.

The Indoor Forest Theater stage is located under the main stage of Carmel's historic Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel-by-the-Sea. Reservations are recommended. Call the Staff Players at 624-1531 or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

The Owl and the Pussycat

Bill Manhoff's comedy, The Owl and the Pussycat, will be the next joint production of the Forest Theatre Guild and The Frohman Academy.

The comedy chronicles a roundabout route to love between a San Francisco author and the shady lady he spies on. The cast features James Brady and Michelle Savage. The Owl and the Pussycat is directed by Michael Cheak.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays through Feb. 17. The Wharf Theatre is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf No. 1 in Monterey.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children. For tickets, call 625-9900 or 649-5561.

Olio Revue

California's First Theater presents its annual Olio Revue. Vaudevilian-type fun suitable for the entire family, Olio Revue is made up of songs, dances and old-time classic skits.

California's First Theatre is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Seating is at 7:30 p.m. for the 8 p.m. curtain on Fridays and Saturdays through Feb. 2.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $5.50 for seniors and teens and $4.50 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

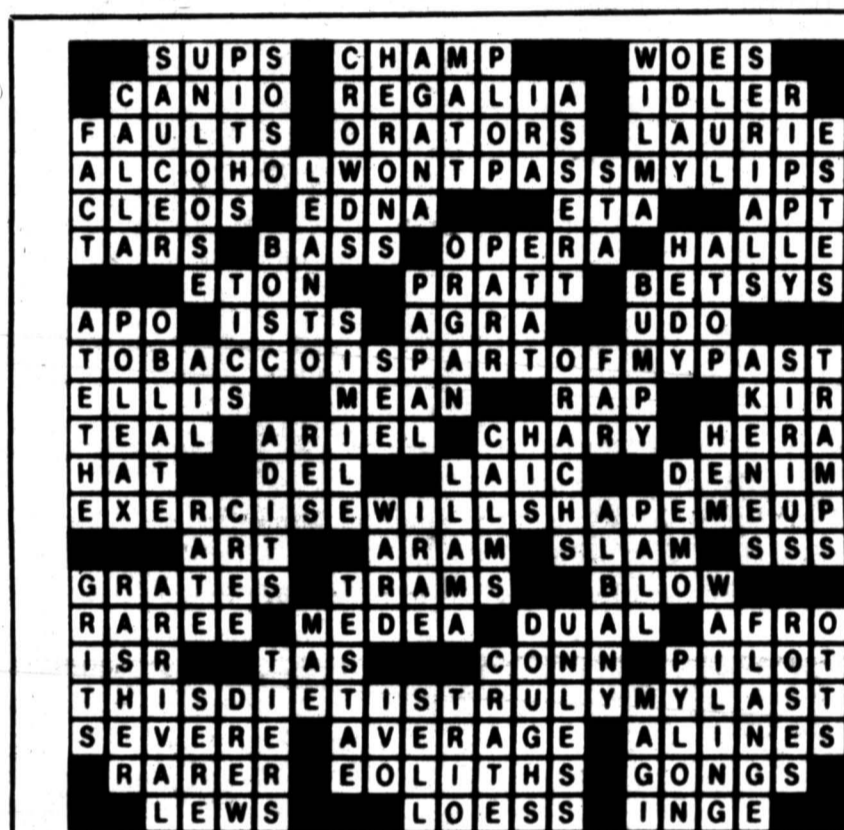

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Black comedy

CLOTILDE DU Mesnil (Marlie Avant, left), pours coffee for young M. Simpson (John Farmanesh) in the 19th century comedy, La Parisienne. Henri Becque penned this sly dissection of bourgeoisie life, which opens Thursday, Jan. 10 at the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For tickets, call 624-1531 or 649-5561.

global reputation. Then came the 1984 tragedy that could have halted the unit's present 18-album track record. The highway crash in Germany killed Collin.

Did they propose a permanent breakup? Paul: "We certainly considered that. We were stunned. It took a long time getting back together." Glen: "Paul and Ralph were on the bus; they were there and saw Collin die. I'd gone home for the birth of my son and was shaken from afar. My son was born, and his middle name is Walcott. I had a new life in my arms. When you're staring at the miracle of life, you can't quit." And Moore again: "Collin met Trilok in Germany (1980-81) and heard him play and said - 'if I ever get tired of this, here's the guy who should be doing it.' Collin picked his own successor."

McCandless: "Playing was too much to deal with. Then we met Trilok at a memorial concert for Collin (springtime '85 at New York City's Irving Plaza). He sat in with Ralph, Glen, me. It was surprising...this man raised in Bombay on Elvin Jones and Roy Haynes. We had some doubts that it could work, but we did a summer tour of small clubs and started having fun."

An Asian tour for United States Information Agency included 30 concerts over six weeks. Towner: "We went to Trilok's house (Bombay) and jammed with his mother. She's Shobha Gurtu, a famous singer of Indian music. It was a close thing and made us part of his life. Trilok never set out to recreate anything; he'd never heard Oregon. That tour put us all in the same boat. We became a band on that tour."

Trilok speaks four Indian dialects plus English, German, Italian. His version of the at-home jam combined the vocal tones of modesty, awe, great love for Shobha - who's on his album Usfret (CMP-CD 33) with Towner and Don Cherry.

"I took everyone there and my mother sang for them. She sings thumri - a classical form of Indian music that's mostly about God, Krishna. My mother was almost in tears. We all played together, ate together. The love did it. Of course the rest of the tour helped get the band together."

And: "My mother's voice had a great effect on the other men. Her voice is of a healing nature. Ralph cried. My mother has a very strong spirituality that she never talks about. She showed the depth of music. We (four) always wanted to play music (as a unit), but she helped us. Music has love, healing power. She's very bluesy, I think: she gets in there and touches people. She sings blues very deep in the soul."

And: "No, my mother's not aware of her healing power. She just sings. That way the ego keeps its place. She'll start singing in a restaurant: wherever The Spirit moves. She's great. She's in Bombay, making records, performing."

Did Trilok think Collin would like today's band? "I think he would love it, particularly the jazz element. It's very nice to see that development. The group's going up, musically. Steps up, higher elevation. I mean that we're getting better, closer to The Source. The Source is everything. 'More elevated' refers to greater simplicity - and our different sound."

Moore: "Oregon stands for creative possibility. It's not a shotgun marriage of classical and jazz. We're a constructive combination of four players with classical, jazz and Indian training along with other influences. We explore these things together."

Trilok: "The musics melded long ago. They are all one to me. I love Elvin Jones, Tony Williams - we all learn from each other. The musics all come from the same source: Soul, God, whatever you want to call it."

GREG STEGEMAN
...word from Japan

MONTEREY PENINSULA Jazz Orchestra and Kuumbwa kick off new seasons on Monday night (1/14). As reported last time, the former has contracted with Mission Ranch Barn for another year's worth of weekly performances. The Santa Cruz venue ends its annual holiday by presenting tremendously influential drummer Elvin Jones.

Co-conducting MPJO this year will be Les Rose and Steve Clickard, both music teachers on the high school level. Former conductor Biff Smith will offer new compositions and pick up the baton when his crowded schedule allows. All this from band administrator Eric Tonn, who adds that the door charge holds at $4 per.

Steve and Marilyn Nergord of Mission Ranch Barn again will oversee menu goodies and bar service. They've been primary patrons of MPJO since Day One.

MPJO also will play at Santa Catalina School Performing Arts Center in a free public concert later this month (1/24). Info number: 655-9341.

Elvin got famous as part of the legendary John Coltrane Quartet. The Jones Jazz Machine will offer two sets - 7:30 and 9:30. It's $14 apiece. Center Stage Ticketing.

Coming up at Kuumbwa: Bobby Hutcherson Quartet (1/21) and the knockout Dirty Dozen Brass Band from New Orleans (1/28). Don't miss the latter. Mardi Gras get-down music in January.

UC/Santa Cruz announces an event for Wednesday evening (1/16) - the program entitled Unwritten Music from Jazz and Other Traditions. Pianist David Jones will work with percussionist George Marsh on "new versions of great standards." Starts at eight o'clock in the Performing Arts Concert Hall. Call the campus box office if you wish reservations.

Vocalist Gail Dobson takes the stage at Monterey Bay Club on Thursday night (1/10). Others: Kevin Feeney (1/11-12), TV football (1/13-14), Jack and Ed Show (1/15), Alan Berman (1/16).

Hot trumpet player Ron Coolidge's group romps all over Tuesday evenings at Shanty Malone's of Valley Hills Center. And Thursdays through Saturdays - Dottie Dodgion, Jackie Coon, Buddy Jones, Ed Erickson.

Other recommended night sounds - Bassist Norm Ross fronting those lively jam sessions at The Firehouse (Thursdays and Saturdays), Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito with Weber Drummond playing piano at Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge (Wednesdays through Sundays), blues-loving pianist Ace Hill plus bassist at Doubletree Lounge (weekends).

FORMER CARMEL VALLEY resident Greg Stegeman achieved his dream. The vocalist and multi-instrumentalist caught on with the Four Freshmen after sending along a tape he'd produced. Now Greg writes from Japan:

"Not only has this been a glorious cultural adventure, but we've had practically a jazz vocal group convention here in Tokyo. We met and sang with Take 6 (gospel unit) just before their concert, although we couldn't stick around for that due to our performance the same night. They are fantastic, warm guys with talent to burn. Earlier in the week, we caught New York Voices at The Blue Note in Tokyo. They too are brilliant performers and musicians - great trio backing them as well. I'll be in touch after we return to the states."

Careful consultation. Complimentary flea dip with each grooming. 327-B Lighthouse in Monterey (next to Consuelo's). Plenty of free off-street parking.

DETRO BOOK 372-1376

St. Andrews Press announces publication of the latest poetry book by local jazz columnist and broadcaster John Detoro. It's St. Joseph's Blues. His quest could turn our culture upside down. Annie Dillard says: "...wonderful fine stuff." Daniel Berrigan: "...a beat missed by semi-comatose hearts." $10. Available at Books Inc. in Carmel (three stores west of Mission on Ocean), Bookworks of Pacific Grove, The Book End at 245 Pearl in Monterey. Or use the above number to order signed copies.

YOUTH MUSIC MONTEREY 375-1992

Affiliated with the Monterey Jazz Festival, runs the three-week Summer Music Monterey Jazz Camp at RLS for young musicians. Instruction in Combos, Big Bands, Improvisation, Theory, History and Jazz Solo Voice is offered, taught by some of the finest jazz artists in the profession.

year with a resolution to enjoy a new type of Sunday
Brunch
at The Dunes

With most brunches, you pay for everything, whether you want it or not. At the Dunes, you only pay for the hot entrees that you desire. We have a base price of $18.95 per person for a lovely buffet of salads, cheeses, seafood, pastries, breakfast dishes, and a delicious dessert buffet. In addition, you may choose from these tempting hot entrees, individually priced and made to order.

Eggs Benedict $2.50	Filet Mignon $7.00
Supreme of Chicken $4.00	A Mixed Grill of Lamb
Pacific Swordfish $5.00	Chops, Italian Sausage,
Veal Scallopini $6.50	and Veal Medallions $7.00

And for children under 12, we have a special price of $9.50.

The Dunes, where you can enjoy a brunch designed just for you and your tastes. Where you only pay for what you want. What a marvelous resolution for 1991.

ROUNDUP

Gem and Mineral Society meets

The Carmel Valley Gem and Mineral Society meets at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 9 in the community room of the Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, Carmel.

Howard Harris will relate his experiences and show slides of his recent tour through the cities and countryside of Eastern Europe. Harris was part of a group of scientists making recommendations concerning manufacturing and agricultural rehabilitation of the area. Harris also managed to bring back a sample of the Berlin Wall.

As always, refreshments will be served and there will be a prize drawing. Admission is free. For more information, call 372-9215.

Navajo weaving techniques discussed

The Carmel Crafts Guild will present Scotts Valley artist/author Marilyn Brandon at its Wednesday, Jan. 16 meeting.

Brandon will show Navajo rug samples from her collection and will discuss weaving techniques and reservation life.

The free meeting will begin at 1 p.m. at the Monterey Senior Center, Lighthouse and Dickman. For details, call 373-7086.

Host families sought for students

Host families are being sought for high school exchange students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Colombia, Turkey, Taiwan, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Brazil, Ecuador, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, Thailand and Yugoslavia for school year 1991-92 in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, age 15 through 17, will arrive in the United States in August, attend a local high school, and return to their home countries in June 1992. The students are fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in their home countries and have spending money and medical insurance.

Host families may deduct $50 per month for income tax purposes.

AISE is also seeking U.S. high school students, age 15 through 17, who would like to spend a high school year in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, France, Spain, Australia or who would like to participate in a semester program in France or Australia.

For information, call toll-free, 1-800-SIBLING.

Study long-term weight management

Are you tired of dieting, only to regain lost weight a few months down the road? Come to a free orientation session on Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula's Weigh of Life program at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 14. You'll learn about the hospital's intensive adult program designed for long-term weight management.

The orientation will be led by registered dietitian Marilyn Uwate. It will take place in the hospital's main conference room.

Weight of Life is a comprehensive, 15-week program which includes a one-year support program afterwards.

Attendance at orientation is required for enrollment in the full program.

For more information, call 625-4708.

Marine mammal excursion planned

The American Cetacean Society (Monterey Bay Chapter) is offering a two-hour whale watching trip on Monterey Bay on Sunday, Jan. 13. The trip has been scheduled for the peak of the migration season and is co-sponsored by Benji Shake of Monterey Sport Fishing.

The trip will be an early one, starting at 7 a.m. and returning at 9 a.m. Donation is $16 for adults and $10 for children 12 and under.

This fundraiser will support marine research projects at local colleges and universities.

The boat will be the 75-foot "Magnum Force," which has a snack bar and galley. The ship will depart from Old Fisherman's Wharf No. 1 in Monterey.

For reservations or information, call 372-0123 or 372-2203.

Parents can build child's self-esteem

Marriage and Family Counselor Judy Masliyah will conduct a series of parenting workshops on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 in the community room of Thunderbird for Kids. The first session begins Jan. 16. Admission is $5.

Masliyah will discuss the impact parenting and communication styles have on children's self-esteem. In the first of seven workshops, "Good Communication: Use or Lose It!," Masliyah will cover reflective listening and feed-back, conveying understanding, and grasping what the child feels and means.

Masliyah received her master's degree in counseling psychology and is a state-licensed marriage, family and child counselor. Currently in private practice on the Monterey Peninsula, she specializes in working around issues of parenting, communication, child abuse, divorce adjustment and self-esteem.

For more information, call 624-4995. Thunderbird for Kids is located in the Barnyard off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

Widows' 'survival course' set

Widows of all ages are encouraged to attend a six-session class, "I'll Get By with a Little Help from My Friends," being offered at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula Thursday mornings from Jan. 17 through Feb. 21.

The course offers information on the emotional and practical aspects of losing a spouse and aims to help widows come through this life-altering experience with renewed growth and hope.

It will be led by Barbara Parker, R.N.; social worker Wayne Lavengood and Shary Farr.

Class will meet 10 a.m. to noon Thursdays in the Terrace Pavilion Library at Community Hospital.

Fee is $30.

To register or for more information, call 625-4708.

Make a child's wish come true

Do you have a boy's or girl's bicycle in good condition that you no longer use? If so, contribute it, tax-deductible, to the Buddy Program of the Monterey Peninsula. For details, call 649-0276.

Foster care families needed

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home - whether it be for six months or the whole year - while family reunification services are offered, or eventually a permanent home.

Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled, the office reports. For information about fostering or adopting a child, call 899-8061 or 755-4660.

There are ways to stop abuse

Across the United States a woman is physically abused every 15 seconds. The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula offers help to women who feel trapped in a potentially harmful situation through counseling, a 24-hour crisis line and a shelter for battered women and their children.

If you or someone you know is in an abusive relationship, let them know there is a way out.

Contact the YWCA Domestic Violence Crisis Line at 372-6300.

Steparenting, stepfamilies workshop

A workshop on "Stepparenting and Stepfamilies" will be offered on Saturday, Jan. 26 in Carpenter Hall of Sunset Center, Carmel. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Susan Borkin, licensed family and child therapist, will be the guest speaker. She has a private practice in Campbell and lectures frequently in area junior colleges as an education instructor.

The program, sponsored by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Community and Cultural Commission and Harrison Memorial Library - Youth Services Department, is designed for the general community and is free of charge.

Content of the workshop includes introduction to stepfamily life, stepfamily developmental stages, behaviors for stepparents, limit setting, discipline and dealing with money. There will be time to address individual issues and concerns.

Pre-registration is required. Call 624-4664 by Jan. 18.

Alzheimer's support group meets

The Alzheimer's Association of Monterey County is a non-profit organization committed to assisting caregivers and family of persons with Alzheimer's Disease or related dementia. Dementia is a medical term for the group of symptoms of deterioration of intellectual function such as memory loss, confusion, and impaired judgment that is severe enough to interfere with work of social activities.

The group offers information and support to help caregivers cope with the problems associated with dementia.

The Monterey office is located in Mariposa Hall at 801 Lighthouse Ave. The group meets 1:30 to 3 p.m. the second Tuesday of the month and 5:15 to 6:45 p.m. the fourth Monday. For information, contact Toni Jacobsen at 647-9890.

SPCA needs towels, linens

A plea to the general public is being made by the SPCA of Monterey County for clean towels, sheets, blankets and pillowcases for use in the animal shelter and wildlife center.

Blankets are used as comforters for the many puppies who are brought to the shelter because no one wants them. Prior to their being adopted, the shelter staff tries to make them as comfortable as possible and using blankets helps.

The greatest demand is for clean towels both in the shelter and in the wildlife center.

Donated items can be delivered to the SPCA animal shelter, 1002 Monterey-Salinas Highway 68 (across from Laguna Seca Recreation Area) any day of the week between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. If the donor has a significant quantity and cannot deliver them to the shelter, arrangements can be made to pick them up.

For more information, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

Volunteers needed to aid sea otters

Want to learn about our local sea otters and help ensure their survival? Friends of the Sea Otter needs a few people to greet visitors, hand out educational material, and sell merchandise at their Sea Otter Center in the Carmel Crossroads. To find out about this and other opportunities, call 373-2747.

MONTEREY PENINSULA PROPERTIES GUIDE

Auditions set for symphony chorus

The Monterey County Symphony Association will form a permanent chorus under the direction of Ken Ahrens, chorus director of the Carmel Bach Festival.

Maestro Clark Suttle and Ahrens will conduct the auditions on Saturday, Jan. 19 at the Church of the Wayfarer on Lincoln at Seventh in Carmel. To make an appointment for an audition call Joan DeVisser, director of operations for the Monterey County Symphony at 624-8511.

The first performance of the chorus will be Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on May 19-21. Rehearsals will begin in March.

Mastroianni stars in 'Dark Eyes'

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will screen the 1987 film, Dark Eyes, Friday through Sunday, Jan. 11-13.

A sophisticated comedy of pathos and passion in turn-of-the-century Europe, Dark Eyes provides Mastroianni with the most acclaimed role of his career. He plays Romano, a dissipated buffoonish Italian sybarite living in blissful indolence off his wife's fortune. Exhausted by his dedicated idleness, he goes to recuperate at a fashionable spa, where he amuses himself with an elaborate scheme to seduce a mysterious but gullible Russian woman.

The film is an Italian/Russian co-production, and is shown in Italian and Russian with subtitles.

Dark Eyes It begins at 8:15 p.m. in the Morse Auditorium at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Admission is $4 general, $3 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 626-1730.
